45 46 47 THE COMMISSIONER: Mr Parish, are you ready to proceed?

MR PARISH: Yes, Commissioner.

Before you do, there's a couple of THE COMMISSIONER: matters arising from yesterday afternoon that I wish to deal with.

At transcript page 250 yesterday Mr Bourne gave some evidence about a meeting on 18 December 2020, this was a community meeting at - I think it was the RSL, I can't quite remember the location at the moment, but it came to my attention yesterday that meeting is recorded and is available on the council's YouTube channel.

I was just going to enquire with you in relation to some of the meetings that have been referred to and others that may be referred to that are available on that channel, do you propose to notionally tender them in evidence before me?

Yes, Commissioner, I will be providing a MR PARISH: notional tender on those, it will probably involve the date, the description, and if the technology allows it, a hyperlink and it will notionally be tendered in due course.

THE COMMISSIONER: Excellent. If that list could have a link that could then be put on the website and then people, should they wish to do so, could link to the relevant meeting.

The second matter arising from that passage of evidence was, at transcript page 257 you examined Mr Bourne about a KPMG report. Do you wish to tender that?

MR PARISH: Yes, Commissioner, I'll tender that now, it's the KPMG report dated 13 July 2021 and addressed to Mr V May, interim administrator, Wingecarribee Shire Council. It comprises three pages.

THE COMMISSIONER: All right. Exhibit J will be report of KPMG dated 13 July 2021 addressed to the interim administrator - I assume this is probably already on the council's website so there's no reason why it can't go on I'll ask that to be pleased on the website as ours? Yes. soon as possible.

2	THE INTERIM ADMINISTRATOR.
4	THE COMMISSIONER: I assume this is probably already on
5	the council's website so there's no reason why it can't go
6	on ours. I'll ask that to be placed on the website as soon
7	as possible. Finally, you may wish to, if you don't have
8	it in front of you, have the transcript of yesterday.
9	There's just a minor on one view correction; for those who
10	are observing the transcription process service is
11	excellent but occasionally the odd word here or there is
12	missed or misheard.
13	misseu oi mishearu.
	Unless it matters to the syldenes I den't propose to 14	Unless it matters to the evidence I don't propose to
15	pick them up, but the one that I think ought to be
16	corrected is on page 259 starting at line 5. I asked
17	Mr Bourne:
18
19	Do you think in addressing that concern -
20	as I understand it there's no local
21	planning panel
22
23	And then I continue on. My recollection is that I
24	said:
25
26	as I understand it there is now a local
27	planning panel
28
29	Do you agree with that, Mr Parish?
30
31	MR PARISH: Yes, Commissioner.
32
33	THE COMMISSIONER: So, if that correction to that passage
34	can be made and the corrected transcript can be placed on
35	the website in due course. Are there any other
36	transcript matters that came to your attention?
37
38	MR PARISH: No, Commissioner.
39
40	THE COMMISSIONER: All right. You proceed.

42	MR PARISH: Thank you, Commissioner. My next witness is
43	Mr Geoff Byrne.

MR BROAD: Excuse me, Commissioner, Councillor Scandrett has an application.

THE COMMISSIONER: Sorry, sir, you'll have to come forward, and I'm sorry, Mr Riley, if he could swap places with you so you can be heard and transcribed, just over this side.

CR SCANDRETT: Thank you, Commissioner. I understand the process for cross-examining any witnesses is to request that before that witness speaks or at the beginning of the session today. So, that's what I'm going to do now, if that's okay?

THE COMMISSIONER: Two things, this is an administrative inquiry, there is no such thing as cross-examination.

CR SCANDRETT: Poor choice of words.

THE COMMISSIONER: There is a process for seeking leave to appear, including asking questions of witnesses set out in the practice direction. Which witnesses do you seek leave to ask questions of?

CR SCANDRETT: I may be seeking leave to ask questions of Mr Byrne, Ms Kennedy and Mr Mooney.

THE COMMISSIONER: All right, what I propose to do then is to hear the evidence of each of those witnesses. If there are matters that you wish to address with the witness at the end of the examination but, for example, Mr Mooney is legally represented, so before I ask his legal representative whether he wishes to ask questions, then I'll turn to you. You can expect that I'll require you to identify topics and questions that you wish to ask of the witnesses before I determine whether that leave will be There will be no general grant of leave to ask questions, the examination is done by Counsel Assisting and I won't permit the same ground to be covered over. all clear?

CR SCANDRETT: Yes, Commissioner. I believe it's the same process you applied to Mr Markwart on Tuesday.

THE COMMISSIONER: I was informed that he may make an

1 2 3 4 5 6 7	application and ultimately he didn't, so the process wasn't needed to be gone through, but be that as it may. So, I won't determine the application at the moment, so what I'll do at the end of Counsel Assisting's examination of the first witness, if you wish to make an application to examine that witness at that time, you can do so and I'll deal with it then.
9	CR SCANDRETT: Thank you, Commissioner.
11 12	THE COMMISSIONER: Mr Parish, over to you.
13 14	MR PARISH: Thank you, Commissioner.

17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26	MR PARISH: Q. Mr Byrne, can I ask you for some background about yourself, your vocation, how long you've lived in the area? A. Sure. I guess my background is, first of all in the canning industry, the glass packaging industry, which included PET bottles, and then the paper industry, all which was mainly servicing the fast food market. I've lived here for 26 years now, I think it is, 25, initially at Berrima and then predominantly here in Bowral - well, not here in Bowral, but in Bowral. I have been - yeah, is
27 28	that sufficient or?
29 30 31 32 33 34	Q. Yes, thank you. You've had significant dealings with the council over the years; is there any particular reason why you have perhaps had more to do with the council than the average resident in the shire? A. I'm sorry, I didn't quite understand.
35 36 37	Q. You have had close contact with the council over the years; is that correct? A. I have, yes.
38 39 40 41	Q. Perhaps more so than the average ratepayer; is that correct? A. I would think so.
42 43 44	Q. And, why is that? A. Well, I'm interested in civic affairs. Initially I

45

46 47 was asked to join one of the council committees as a community representative, that was the committee advising on the management of the Resource Recovery Centre; that

- Q. Can I ask when you first became involved in the Resource Recovery Centre Committee?
- A. Oh, it was when it was founded, I can't quite remember, but I would think it's probably 15 years ago, 14 or 15 years ago.

 Q. And, how long were you a member of that group?

A. Well, until they were basically disbanded. As I say, the RIC morphed into the business units and that was called - I think about three years ago that finally was disbanded.

- Q. Can you please tell me how these committees or business units worked practically? How often did you meet, who met, what was discussed?
- A. Yeah, well, we met probably, I can't quite remember, but probably every two or three months and it was really just to offer the experiences of a couple of local business people in the main on things that could be done to improve the service both at the RIC and saleyards. There would generally be at least one councillor, sometimes up to three, and three maybe four community representatives, plus staff of course.

- Q. Do I take it from your answer that you had experience with councillors, in both the 2016-2020 term but also the 2012-2016 term; is that correct?
- A. Yes, I was certainly, um yeah, I was involved and quite interested in council as far as back as I think Ms Juliet Arkwright was the first mayor I actually remember seeing at a meeting, I used to come to meetings quite regularly.

- Q. I'll ask you some questions about your impression of the culture and tone of both council meetings and your experience of the committee meeting in a moment, but can I ask, did you notice any change in the committee or council meetings that you attended between terms?
- A. I think it's fair to say that council meetings have progressively gotten less professional and far more personal, yeah, they were quite unacceptable as far as I was concerned, it was there was quite a bit of, in my opinion, bad behaviour and diversions that became quite personal.

- Q. I might just ask you a bit more about that in a second, but before I get to that, just going back to the committee that you were involved in, what was your impression about how that functioned? Was that a useful and effective consultation in your opinion?
- A. I think it could have been better. It took they were business units and it was in my opinion quite difficult to morph a business into the council's operation, where in the council's operation all the money you get is considered a negative and all the money you spend is considered a positive which, I think council probably shouldn't have operated things as a business, personally, but the meetings themselves were generally quite positive. The information that we got eventually we were a bit disappointed in the complexity of it that improved dramatically, and I think the meetings were very positive and I'd have to say they were very well chaired.

Q. Do you recall who the chair was or various persons? A. I think the chairman for the whole time was Councillor Gair; I'm pretty sure he was always the chairman.

Q. We're talking about the committees and the business units that you were involved in?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. In respect of council meetings, did you have occasion to attend them from time to time during the 2016-2020 term? A. I attended very regularly, yeah, I would think most meetings I attended.

Q. You've already given us some impressions of your view of the conduct at those briefly; more specifically, what struck you about the way that those meetings and this term were conducted?

A. Well, I think it was - they were very difficult, and this goes back to when Councillor Arkwright was mayor, they were very difficult to manage because there was a lot of interruptions, sometimes very pointless, almost just to make a point, and it seemed to me almost deliberate, and that continued all the way through until the council was actually dismissed.

A. Yeah, I would say - yeah, I'll agree with that.

- Q. In your impression, was there any reason for that degradation of behaviour or conduct?
- A. Well, I can't identify what the reason would be, it struck me as being totally unnecessary, but yeah, it certainly there were two councillors in particular I felt were sort of almost set out to be disruptive.

- Q. Are you comfortable saying who you thought those councillors were?
- A. Yeah, I thought Councillor Scandrett and Councillor Turland were the main problems for any chairman to handle.

 Q. Can you give examples of events you witnessed that led to your conclusion that those two councillors were a cause of disruption?

A. Examples: the constant interruptions in Councillor Turland's case, often very angry outbursts, total disregard for the chair. It just was almost a continuous, every meeting there would be something brought you up, and interruptions, and I just thought they almost - they made

27 it very difficult for any chairperson.

 Q. Were you left with the impression, when Councillor Halstead was mayor, that he had sufficient control of the meetings as chair?

A. I would think Councillor Halstead did manage that, yeah, probably as well as anyone in the last three mayors.

Q. Can you give me your impression of whether you thought Councillor Gair, when he was mayor, was able to exercise sufficient control over the meetings?

A. He was initially. As I said, I think he was a very competent chairperson, he knew the rules, he knew meeting procedure, more than most people did, but I think he became quite frustrated by just the continual interruptions and, well, bad behaviour that continued to go on.

- Q. You had, at least on two occasions, disputes with senior staff and councillors in the allocation of funds; is that correct?
- A. I think "disputes" is probably not quite the right

Q. Can you tell us about your recollection of that one? A. Yeah, that was to do with the disbursement of funds from the environment levy which is a levy that the community agreed to - many years ago - that money was earmarked for the natural environment in keeping it as it was and restoring it where necessary, it was a very effective fund and operation, but I can't quite remember the interim, 18/19 might have been.

 In 2018/19 the council decided that it was going to help fund a local art gallery and it hadn't been budgeted, so council decided that they would take - I think it was $350,000, that sort of figure, from the reserves of the environment fund and claimed at the time that that would not affect the operation of that group of people and what would be done. It was relatively easy to show that that was in fact incorrect and the forward estimates from one year to the next dropped remarkably in the environment levy budget. As I say, it wasn't really a dispute, it was, as soon as that was pointed out it was - the money was found somewhere else.

THE COMMISSIONER: Q. Mr Byrne, was that something that arose in your role as a member of the committee to which you've referred earlier, or was this something you rose independently of that.

A. No, I wasn't a member of the environment committee, but I did attend a public meeting when this first was raised in the public, it was quite a vigorous meeting, I suppose, and I was nominated to be one of the people that approached council to try and get them to change their mind, yeah, and then I did find these figures and after that it was a lay down misere, council backed off completely.

 ${\tt Q.}~{\tt So~I}$ take it from your answers to Mr Parish earlier, that you were satisfied with how that issue was dealt with and resolved after you raised it?

A. I was satisfied, yes.

Q. How did you find the interaction with staff about that issue? Was it professional and appropriate in your view?

A. Yeah, I'd had a bit to do with staff before, particularly when councillor - I had applied for an extra - a rate increase and that was granted, and I was concerned that the money might get frittered away, so I used to monitor where it was spent and as far as I know it was spent exactly the way it was - the purpose it was raised for.

THE COMMISSIONER: Yes. Thank you.

MR PARISH: Q. Mr Byrne, do you recall when that public meeting was that you just referred to, how many years ago? A. I would think it's probably in the last three, maybe four years - time passes. I know it was at the Bowral community - yeah, Civic Centre in Bowral, yeah.

- Q. Do you recall who chaired that meeting and who was present, if anyone, from the council?
- A. I'm fairly sure it was I can't quite remember, but I know Mr Clive West was instrumental in organising that meeting, and I know obviously he was there.
- Councillor Gair was there and so was councillor Larry, I can't think of his surname, sorry.

Q. Would it be Mr Whipper?

Yeah, Councillor Whipper.

 Α.

Q. Can you tell me about your impressions about how that meeting was conducted and how the councillors interacted with the community?

A. Oh, the councillor - both councillors were very defensive and offensive at the same time in saying that the money had to be found somewhere and this is it, but the mayor did agree to meet a delegation the following week. But they, yeah, they were both very definite that the money was going to come out of that fund at that stage.

- Q. And you said in the words that send a shiver up transcribers' hearts, that it was a "lay down misere" in the end?
- A. Well, I think that the figure was just so conclusive and I guess, well, it put a light to the fact that nothing was going to be affected in the operation of the environment fund.

- Q. Do I understand your evidence then that it was your impression that they did listen to you, acknowledged their mistakes, and change course appropriately?
- A. That's right, yes.

THE COMMISSIONER:

questions go to?

Which terms of reference do those

CR SCANDRETT: I think it's Part 1 of your four terms of 1 2 reference, the capability of councillors. 3 THE COMMISSIONER: What I think I'll do. That evidence 38 can come from other sources, can't it? 39 CR SCANDRETT: 40 Yes. 41 THE COMMISSIONER: And there will be records about it, 42 43 won't there? 44 CR SCANDRETT: Well, that appears to be an issue of some 45 concern, Commissioner, in terms of the amount of records 46 47 kept by council on training.

My next witness is Mr Richard Mooney. 40 MR PARISH:

41

THE COMMISSIONER: Yes. 42 Mr Riley, you appear for 43 Mr Mooney while he's giving his evidence?

44

45 MR RILEY: Yes, I seek leave to appear.

46

47 THE COMMISSIONER: You have that leave, thank you.

<EXAMINATION BY MR PARISH:</pre>

Mr Mooney, could you please give us a bit of background about your vocation and your role at the council and how long you have been in the shire area for? Absolutely. Firstly, good morning, Commissioner, and good morning, Mr Parish. My role here at council commenced in April 2015 when I took on the position of CFO, chief financial office. That was after working for a period of approximately 17 years in senior finance roles within the local government industry. Upon taking on my role in 2017 my portfolio included corporate finance, revenue, procurement, fleet, payroll and also property services. held that role until most recently August 2021, where an opportunity arose to be closer to my family and I voluntarily resigned from the organisation on what I believed to be very good terms.

 Q. Can you tell me a little bit about your reporting lines within council: who you reported to, the sorts of staff you were responsible for?

A. Yeah, happy to do so, Mr Parish. Initially when I was employed as a CFO the direct reporting line was to the dependency general manager, operations, finance and risk, Mr Barry Paull, who then reported to the general manager, Ms Ann Prendergast.

It's probably prudent at this stage, Mr Parish, to also make you aware that during the period of August 2020 to August 2021 I held the position of acting deputy general manager, operations, finance and risk, for a substantial period of that time due to vacancies within our executive team.

 Q. I just want to ask you a few questions about how you in your role as a staff member interacted with councillors and reported to them. Can you tell the Commissioner a little bit --

THE COMMISSIONER: Sorry, Mr Parish, before you do. Could the witness be shown Exhibit A? Sorry to cut you off, but whilst I remember this.

MR PARISH: Volume 1 or volume 2?

1 2	THE COMMISSIONER: Volume 1, page 4.
3	THE WITNESS: Yes, I have that now, Commissioner.
5	THE COMMISSIONER: Thank you.
6 7 8 9 10	Q. That's the organisational structure version 8 as at 30 September 2016; do you see that? A. Yes, correct.
11 12 13 14	Q. I appreciate the names might have changed, but did the structure largely remain the same until, let's just say the appointment of the interim administrator? A. That would be a fair assessment, Commissioner.
16 17 18 19 20 21	Q. Yes, and do I take it - I just didn't quite catch your acting role; was that acting deputy manager, operations, finance and risk, is that where you stepped into that role? A. That's correct, Commissioner. At the time Mr Barry Paull was in the Acting general manager's role. So, as you can appreciate, the two roles stepped up.
22 23 24 25	THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, thank you. Sorry to have taken you off course, Mr Parish.
26 27 28 29	MR PARISH: Q. How many staff reported to you, how many staff were you managing? A. Approximately 26 to 28 staff.
30 31 32 33	Q. Just to go back to the topic before the Commissioner asked a few questions, can you give the inquiry an overview into how the quarterly budget review statements works, your involvement with them and how that interacted with the
34 35 36 37 38	governing body? A. Yep, I can, Mr Parish, and, in doing so, I'll aim to address the first question that you asked as well about interaction with councillors if memory serves me correct?
39 40 41 42	Q. Yes. A. So, in line with council's adopted staff interaction with councillors, my position was identified as one of the positions that was permitted to have contact directly with
43 44 45 46	councillors. My role didn't necessarily require day-to-day interaction with councillors, my interaction with councillors was primarily on briefing days, so three out of the four Wednesdays of the month were either allocated
47	towards briefings to be held by staff, council or committee meetings, with the fourth Wednesday being a free day for want of a better term for the councillors. So. I would invariably attend those briefings and obviously I would also attend council meetings.

Mr Parish, bringing it back to the second part of your question, the quarterly budget review statement. quarterly budget review statement is a quarterly financial report that council is required, all councils are required to submit to council for formal endorsement within eight weeks of the quarter end. The process that we would go through - and I'll try and summarise this as best as possible - the internal components, is that, our budget team would meet with the various sections of the organisation, we would compile a list of variations against approved projects: we would identify any unfunded projects which would require a formal resolution of council to be included in the budget. The report would be peer reviewed by myself and the deputy general manager, operations, finance and risk, before being presented to the general manager for final sign-off and circulation to the councillors.

The councillors would receive those reports via the finance committee. So, Wingecarribee - and there are a few councils, albeit rural Regional Councils who do it, but Wingecarribee Council is a council that still, up until the appointment of the administrator, operated with a separate finance commit that dealt with all finance matters Those minutes were then reported to full separately. council for adoption. So, the quarterly budget review statement would be presented to the finance committee meeting which would be held on the third Wednesday every eight weeks for better or worse.

My role as the CFO was to effectively provide guidance to the chair of that committee, the chair being the mayor of the day, but obviously given the nature of the reports, given the technical nature, the mayor of the day, both from 2016-2018 and 2018-2020 relied heavily on me to be able to guide councillors through the reports.

Can I go back to the start of that answer, if you can assist me as someone financially borderline illiterate, you talked about compiling a list of variations on projects and then you referred to unfunded projects. Was that basically, we have a project going at the moment, you have

Α. Correct.

- And the other category we have unfunded projects, we have a new project we propose to get up and running, this is our budget and we expect we will need this much money for that and we seek your approval for that amount of money?
- Α. Mr Parish, a really good example of that is that, as part of our asset and inspection regime, our asset team may come to us and say we have a really big issue with a culvert pit in the back of Moss Vale, it's been found to be defective, from a public safety perspective we need to address it now.

I want to be very, very clear about this: the delegations that the council can exercise to staff are clearly outlined in section 377 of the Act. Okay, I want to be very, very clear that this organisation takes its responsibilities in terms of only council being the body that is able to vote funds is something that we've always taken very seriously contrary to the views of others.

27 28 29

30 31

32

33

34

35

36

37

38

39

40

- I might come to that soon, Mr Mooney, but what were the other mechanisms, if any, by which you reported and sought funds and generally monitored the budget with council? What other processes or documents?
- Yeah, there were other processes, Mr Parish, and they Α. were primarily due to timing. There were occasions where separate reports were presented, prepared and presented to full council simply because of the timing of quarterly budget reviews not necessarily aligning with the need to get a decision from council regarding specific projects. So, there are many examples of reports which are essentially of a financial nature where we've sought an adjustment to budget by council through a separate report.

41 42 43

Q. What a lawyer might call an ad hoc report? Α. Of course, yes.

44 45 46

47

Just turning briefly to the briefing days, can you describe how they worked from the finance committee point

And was that every three out of four Wednesday? No, it was four times, we held finance committee four So, yeah, it would be held every two months, times a yeah. every two or three months.

8 9 10

And when you weren't in the finance committee, what was your role in the briefings that took place on Wednesdays?

12 13 14

16

17

18 19

20

21

11

Oh, invariably there were briefings that were provided by other sections of council that required some financial expertise. It's not uncommon for projects to have broader financial implications. Being someone of a corporate services background as well, there were opportunities that I could provide value from a procurement perspective and in some cases, depending on who the staff were in the room on governance matters as well. So, yeah, a sound head in the room to identify any potential issues that the council may need to be aware of or cognisant of.

22 23 24

26

27

- Q. Can you give me your general impressions of those briefings during the 2016-2020 term?
- Happy to do so, Mr Parish. By way of context what I might also do so is just outline the way those briefings were run when I first started at council.

28 29

Q. Please?

30 31 32

33

34

35

36

37

38

39

I arrived at a very unique time in Wingecarribee Shire's history. One where I believe that from a councillor prospective it probably had never been more The reason for that being the New South Wales State Government at the time was driving its Fit for the Future Reform agendas which was essentially about amalgamation, and there was a real genuine fear within the broader shire, and particularly the councillors, that there was a potential de-amalgamation in the case of Wingecarribee on the cards.

40 41 42

45

So, I arrived in an organisation that, despite what I knew as a council that had quite a colourful history over the past 20 years was quite different, there was very much a unified approach to what the organisation believed that they needed to achieve to remain a stand-alone council.

We roll into 2016 in the new council and I would describe the behaviour of the first couple of years. albeit even the first three of four years, albeit there were occasions where personalities did pop up. times where there was disagreements between certain councillors, but I would suggest that during that first three-year period they were the exception rather than the norm.

> For me personally what really saw a significant change in the mindset in how the briefings were held and how councillor interaction with senior staff really started to deteriorate, twofold: the bushfires and the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic. There are scenes that senior staff in this organisation have witnessed that I think will live with them for the rest of their lives and they would be, I think from a professional perspective, very, very disappointed with what they saw and the manner and the behaviours that a number of our councillors displayed.

20

- Q. Can you tell the inquiry what those are?
- Α. I can provide examples?

Can I pause there.

impacted on staff.

24 25 26

Q. Yes.

Q.

27 28 29

30 31

The first meeting after the bushfire, which was a terrible, terrible experience for those members in the public who had so sadly lost their homes due to the bushfires, and obviously those memories were still so raw for them, I think that that is something that will be very much in the remit of this inquiry.

had to assist the minute taker - and please don't think believed to be of the utmost importance, that is, the hurt and decimation that those people who were at the meeting addressing the behaviours of the councillors and how that these comments are taking anything away from what I were, who had been impacted by the fire, they were obviously the most significantly impacted people.

Correct, I was, I was. At one stage I requested or 32 33

34 35

41 42 43

40

44 45

46 47

So, we had a situation where our minute taker had to be removed from the room just because the ferocity of the debate was just too much.

Were you at that meeting?

At the end of the meeting a very close colleague of mine, Ms Danielle Lidgard, was verbally abused at length by a councillor and then questioned by another councillor, which was totally inappropriate, absolutely inappropriate behaviour. I interjected, used some fairly forceful language in terms of needing the - the individual needing to correct his behaviour, but that is just one example of where we really did start to see a significant slide in the relationship between counsel and senior staff.

- Q. What about council and the public at least, focusing on that specific meeting for now, what was your impression about how the council, the councillors, either as a whole or individuals, dealt with the public in that meeting in particular, first of all?
- A. It was very disappointing.
- Q. In what way, what behaviour did you see towards the public which led you to that view?
- A. I think it was disappointing because there are simple steps that could have been taken that could have completely changed the atmosphere within the room. Better communication as to, well, what are we here to talk about? Because that is something that I think the shire and the advocacy groups within the shire, because there are many, more so than most places, you'll have an advocacy group say, "This is what it's about" and another one say, "Well, this is what it's about" but the council, ultimately it's their meeting and it's about setting a very clear tone that, okay, this is what we want to achieve out of this meeting, and being on the front foot around communication.

And, this may upset a few people within the organisation, but I felt that we let the people who were attending that meeting, and the broader community, I felt that we let them down at that meeting.

THE COMMISSIONER: Q. What causes you to say that?

A. Well, again, I'll come back to the point that it was a meeting that we should have known we were dealing with people that were highly emotional, were going to be highly agitated, had very little understanding of bushfire response and who the lead agency should be and what then the role is that council plays. A lot of that communication, I know there were attempts for us to try and disseminate that information, and I certainly understand

- Q. While we're on the topic of communication, I want to take it away from the bushfire example and to communication more generally. From your perspective was the council as an organisation effectively communicating with the community in the 2016 term?
- A. I think generally we did a good job. There are a number of high profile projects where we have been criticised about that communication. My firm belief is that that communication was disrupted because information was leaked and that did not do council any favour in terms of being able to send out a clear cohesive message around those key projects.

Commissioner, if I may, just quickly walk you through major projects?

- Q. Yes, please do.
- A. There is and there always will be a need for governments at all tiers to constantly manage project budgets, significant capital project budgets. We council here have taken a lot of positive steps forward in terms of introducing a project management framework, getting the right bodies on board, but invariably they're still going to occur, you're still going to have unknowns come out of projects, latent conditions, that will result in variations.

Now, my role as the CFO was not to run to the GM or to the council and say, "I've got a million dollar problem" and then shrug my shoulders, that's not what I'm employed My job is to say, right, we've got a million dollar problem, let's have a look at what funding strategies and funding mechanisms we can utilise. First of all obviously you want to make sure that you're getting value for that million dollars and that it's actually in line with the But ultimately you would then look at, is there project. grant opportunities, is there ways that we can pull back the scope of some other projects or are there savings available, are there internal cash reserves, potentially where does our debt servicing ratio sit at the moment, so is loan borrowings a lever that we can pull; these are all things that we can investigate because ultimately this is a

11

We would then go to council, typically via a briefing, make them aware of the problem: this is a variance, the reason for the variance is X, Y, Z. External agency requires us to modify a roundabout, otherwise they're not gonna sign-off on the overall project. That results in a project variation. We would work them through all of those We would then say, right, councillors, your options are in front of you: you can proceed and this is what we believe to be a viable funding strategy, or other options are de-scope works, et cetera, et cetera.

12 13 14

16

18

Now again, this comes back to 377 of the Act and why I'm going to often repeat back to this. That would be reported back to council as a formal report, as you said Mr Parish, an ad hoc report, and we would communicate it through that channel, you know, media releases would hang off it.

19 20 21

23

24 25

26

We have never been helped in this organisation by getting to the stage of where we brief the councillors, we've got the $38m - that's a poor example because that was never going to be funded at $38m, but let's just say the example is the Civic Centre at 9.2 and the councillors wanted to add the $8.5m to do the work over here. apologise, I'm losing my train of thought.

27 28 29

32 33

34

35

37

So, as I said, we would effectively communicate that through the council report, but that information was being leaked out. It was getting leaked out to media outlets, it was being leaked out to other advocacy groups who were hell-bent on just saying, council's just blown its budget. No recognition of the fact that, okay, well, like any tier of government we've identified a variation, we've considered our options, and this is what we believe are appropriate solutions that we can put forward to council for formal resolution.

38 39 40

42

- Did that have an effect on your ability to do your Q. job?
- The information being leaked? Α.

43 44

Q. Yes?

45 46

47

Not my job personally, but it certainly hindered the Α. council's ability, the broader council's ability, to deal with it because it wasn't in a controlled fashion; they were having to bat off responses, where the councillors were in a position saying, "Well, I can't be addressing this now, I need to wait until the actual report's in". The formal report with all of the solutions is presented to council, if you know what I mean.

THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, thank you.

11 12

What about your morale, did that affect MR PARISH: Q. your morale when matters were being leaked outside of the usual process, either yours or if you can give any examples from staff who reported to you?

13 14 15

Oh, "frustration" would probably be a better word. Resilience is something that you quickly develop at Wingecarribee.

16 17

20

THE COMMISSIONER: Q. Why do you say that? The cut and thrust of dealing with a particular handful of council, councillors, not all of them, but the cut and thrusts were a particular handful of councillors, yeah, you need to be able to bounce pretty quickly.

21 22 23

25

26

- Who were the particular handful who required that level of resilience to deal with?
- Look, it may be best, Commissioner, if I talk about the incidents and then relay that back to the councillors, if that suits?

27 28 29

THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, I'll let Mr Parish explore that with you.

30 31 32

34

35

37

38 39 MR PARISH: Q. Yes. We've, it seems to me, skirted around the Station Street bypass to an extent in dealing with this topic. You may have had better things to do with your time, but there was some evidence in this inquiry from concerned residents about the budget and the way it escalated in the Station Street bypass project. Can you give us your experience and impression and indeed firsthand knowledge of how that process was worked through at the time?

40 41 42

44

45

46 47

Yep, happy to do so, Mr Parish, and I'll hopefully be Α. able to provide a little bit more detail because obviously that was a project that was gaining a fair bit of pace when I was acting DGM, operations, finance and risk. So, the process was borne out of - and if I'm repeating anything that I may not have heard, because obviously I haven't had the amount of time to watch yesterday's hearings.

41 42 43

44 45

46 47 THE COMMISSIONER: Don't trouble yourself about that, Mr Mooney, you answer in the way you see fit.

THE WITNESS: Okay, so the project was originally borne out of a $7.5m grant, I believe, through the Illawarra Restart Project, so the sale of Port Kembla. Council had $2 million in what was referred to as developer contributions, now 711 contributions to allocate towards the project.

The project when I first started in 2015 had seemed to drag on a bit. As a result of that and as a result of further refinement to the scoping of the project, because I want to be really clear here, the funding announcement had very little in the way of scoping around it. Okav it was. as I understood, limits it to one or two pages, which is not how we scope projects, it's not how Wingecarribee scopes projects nowadays, it's now how any council scopes projects nowadays.

So, if memory serves me correct, it was around 2018 we identified some costs escalation and also some additional scoping that was included around landscaping, and there may even have been some bringing Telstra lines under the ground, we increased the budget to about 12.272m, thereabouts, I haven't got the figures in front of me.

- Can I just stop you there. When you say "we identified", is that you in the CFO role who identified it, or are you liaising with other departments at the same time?
- Α. Yeah, collectively the project management group would have approached us and said, "We've got this problem". when I use the "we" vernacular, I'm talking about we, myself and other senior financial staff.

There was then another cost variation which brought the budget up to about $15m. The reasons at this stage do escape me, but I am aware there was a report that went to council, and I have a copy of the report here with me, there was a report that was prepared for the meeting 12 May which was prepared by myself and the current group manager of capital projects which provides all of the history in terms of the variations.

THE COMMISSIONER: Q. 12 May 2018?

- 6 Oh, 2021, I'm sorry. Q. 7
 - Yes, it was a close out report. Α.
 - Sorry, I thought you were referring back to 2018, thank vou.
 - So, where was I? So that led us to No, that's fine. a point where we had a budget of give or take $18.262m. There were significant negotiations which were required with TAHE. I think until about three or four months ago TAHE was unknown to most people in New South Wales, but obviously then with the state budget being announced and then realising that they were just shifting all of the state assets into that holding it's become a lot more popular.

But getting back to the case with Station Street, that was the body that we were required to negotiate with respect to the land at Mittagong where we were potentially looking at doing a proposed land swap.

The point that I want to make really clear, and I don't know if this was raised yesterday, but in 2018 Infrastructure New South Wales who were the funding body providing the $7.5m requested that an independent deep dive review be undertaken on the Station Street project. passed and the comments were that it was a well presented and well documented project, okay. So, I know you have heard from numerous local experts, but yet again that is an independent body telling both the funding body and council that the project had merits.

So, we're at a situation where we had an $18.2m During September, October, the group manager of capital projects and myself requested that a further cost estimate be prepared based on P90 confidence. confidence essentially means that the estimate is going to give us confidence that the cost is going to be 10 per cent on selling. It's at that stage that we were advised that it was $38m.

Now, I want to make it really clear at this stage also, at no stage - at no stage - did any member of staff

THE COMMISSIONER: Q. What was the likely fate of the project once that report came back to you?

A. So, we briefed council, and again this was around timing, because we really needed to move quickly, we needed to engage with the funding body to assess what the likelihood would be if they accepted a significantly revised scope of the work. So, what we were effectively looking at doing - and this is a layman's term, this is where I revert back to the finances, not necessarily the engineering - but essentially looking at the job in its entirety from A through to B to C; it was A to C. We were effectively looking at saying, well, within existing budget constraints we could do A to B; we could then potentially look for alternative grant funding to do B to C.

- Q. At some later stage?
- A. Sorry?

Q. Some grants to do B to C at some later stage or?
A. Correct, Commissioner. We briefed councillors on the matter if memory serves me correct in early December. We had to brief them because the reality is that the then acting general manager needed to formally write to the funding body to see if they were prepared to accept that. It was questionable whether they would. That letter never got sent.

- Q. Why?
- A. The events of January and February played out.

Q. I see, yes.

A. But the figure of $38m was leaked.

Q. Yes. So, after that review, I take it the project was looking - or what could be undertaken was looking different to what had been moving forward until that time; is that a fair assessment?

fair assessment?
A. So. the repo

A. So, the report on the 12th will be a good report.

Q. Yes, I have read it.

A. Actually - and I'm sure the Civic Centre refurbishment will come up as well. At the request of the administrator,

- Q. Just taking you back to an answer you gave earlier. Once the new costings became known there was a need to go back to the funding agency to see whether they would accept a variation of how the project was to proceed; did I understand you correctly?
- A. (Witness nods.)

 Q. Why was that necessary?

Station Street upgrade project.

A. I believe it's because ultimately the project as part of its fundamental merits must achieve a positive cost-benefit ratio. So, it was a need of having to say, well, we're not doing A to C, we're doing A to B, what's that do to the cost-benefit ratio? Which again, if memory serves me correct, it still reported a positive cost-benefit ratio because most of the improvements were up in the area - the most contentious area - were up in the area that we initially were going to undertake works.

THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, all right. Thank you.

MR PARISH: Q. Could I just ask on that: there were cost-benefit analyses, is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Were there updates to those?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it a continual process, as it were?

A. They were updated upon request.

- Q. The other question I wanted to ask out of what you've just told the Commissioner, and I think is implicit possibly in your answers: you were dealing with state agencies throughout this process; is that correct?

 A Not me directly but the organisation was I on
- A. Not me directly but the organisation was. I on occasion was required to speak to some of these senior staff members, but there were numerous meetings that the acting general manager and the general manager both attended in Sydney, but those meetings were largely in the remit of Mr Paull.

MR PARISH: I might just say at this stage, Commissioner, just to give you a page reference for the transcript. There is reference to the 12 May 2021 administrator minute of meeting at page 778 of tender bundle 2.

THE COMMISSIONER: Exhibit A?

MR PARISH: Tender bundle B.

- Yeah, I think I'll leave it at that, thank you. Α.
- In your opinion, do you think there was regular or appropriate - and/or appropriate consultation with the community in respect of the Station Street bypass? asking in your role as CFO --? Yes, I do. Α.
- -- whether there was anything unusual or out of the ordinary I guess --
- I believe we do. I believe we do. This isn't going to be to the liking of the ears of the people who have presented previously, but I believe that these individuals who are highly intelligent, highly educated, and I think sometimes they don't realise that we've got highly intelligent and highly educated people behind the doors working for council who are developing these types of plans, but my sense is that they believe consultation was an opportunity to come in and basically throw the baby out That isn't in any major capital works with the bath water. program, particularly one that's tied to grant funding, that isn't the approach that we take.

improve an outcome. There seems to be a perception down here that staff can't be trusted in their jobs and that staff don't necessarily look at all alternatives.

If you refer to that report that we presented back in May regarding Station Street, there is a section on there around alternatives, and staff did look at alternatives. Alternatives such as having the bypass go up, and local Bowral people will cane me for this, I think it's Kirkham Street, so it's the one that runs on the other side of the bridge and then it coming over the train line. You know, you're talking three, four times the size of what it would cost to upgrade Station Street.

We have employed for well over 20 years a well-respected traffic engineer, he is highly regarded both within the industry and within state agencies. He's since His parting words were to us, "Station Street will be built at some point". It is the only viable method to breaking the traffic chaos that is Bong Bong Street.

Now, these are the views of not an engineer, of someone who's not a technician, these are simply my views that I'm sharing with you.

- Can I ask you, when you say a perception that staff can't be trusted, who are you talking about there? perception of who?
- "Trust" is probably not the right word. perception within a small faction of the Bowral community, more often than not people who have moved down here from Sydney who have held, you know, quite senior positions, whether that be engineering, planning, legal background, and they come in and they believe that there's better alternative solutions and that council wouldn't have necessarily considered those solutions, and that's not the case.

THE COMMISSIONER: Q. The fact that, despite a consultation process there were a series of community groups still saying, "We haven't been consulted", I suppose there's an element of subjectivity about the level of consultation, but do you think it's incumbent on the organisation to take steps to try to correct that perception or put as much information out there as they can to be able to point to say, "Here it all is"? Absolutely, I completely agree.

 Q. Do you think that happened, or happened effectively? A. Commissioner, I do, but the views of others state otherwise. So, again, as you said quite rightly, it is subjective. We use an engagement platform, and again, we have a highly engaged community, quite computer or tech-savvy, you know, so we do have engagement platforms like, you'll Wingecarribee which has been a platform that we've used for several years to pretty much provide a catalogue, historical catalogue, of the consultation.

Now, from my perspective in other council areas, would that be deemed sufficient? Yes. Is it deemed sufficient in the Southern Highlands? Well, the feedback you're getting is that, no, that that's no.

- Q. And, in light of that feedback, do you think it's incumbent on the organisation to adjust or is it unrealistic expectations from the community?

 A. Commissioner, in my view it's about having a very
- A. Commissioner, in my view it's about having a very, very clear framework around the decision-making process, because and again, sharing my view, is that some of the individuals that you've been speaking to and have been quite vocal around knowing experts, they want to get into the decision-making process; that is consultation in their eyes. Someone with 20-plus years experience in local government, no, I don't believe that that's a space that residents should be entering.
- Q. One of the issues that's been raised in the evidence so far about Station Street is, when changes to the project occurred, it didn't go back out for further consultation and it was presented as, well, this is the way the project the only way the project can proceed, so this is it. Do you have a view about that?
- A. Yeah, look, and I think I may recall it's funny I'm getting all these questions, I'm not an engineer --
- Q. No, I'm not asking you about the merits of the project, that's quite different.
- A. No, it's all good, Commissioner. My understanding is, that that was a change what brought about that angst was a changed required by either the RMS or Transport For New South Wales, whichever manner they're operating under now, that the design of the roundabout didn't comply. So, there was a change required to the designs to modify modify the roundabout, which then resulted in a reduction in the Standing from an officer's perspective and someone not close to the project, I would struggle with that concept, that would be more of a notification type process from me because, if a state agency is telling you, look, this process doesn't proceed unless you make that change, then the only option you have to do is to make that change; it's not something you can go to the community and consult with, it's something that potentially is a notification process. I hope that does make sense?

- Q. Yes, I understand what you say. Against that, just putting the counter-proposition to you for your comment would be, if that is a matter of some significance to the community, should the community then have an opportunity to provide feedback about whether the project should proceed at all? Is that a reasonable view of consultation in your experience?
- A. (Witness nods.)

- Q. You'd agree with that?
- A. Correct.

THE COMMISSIONER: Thank you, Mr Parish.

MR PARISH: I was going to move on from the Station Street bypass topic unless either of you wish to be heard any further?

THE COMMISSIONER: Not from me at the moment but something else may pop into my head as we go.

MR PARISH: Excellent.

- Q. Can I just ask, in your experience in briefings or in council meetings, did you ever witness any improper interference by the governing body in the operational role of the staff?
- A. Mr Parish, I would suggest that the area that was probably always the grey line was that the final thing that we did before council meeting on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month is, we would go for a business

Now, you know, that has its merits, in that, 1 paper review. 2 senior staff can be available to answer any question, and 3 when I first started I felt that it could result in a bit 4 more of an expedient council meeting, which often wasn't 5 the case, but as I was saying, it would allow opportunities 6 to ask questions strictly about the report itself.

The issue where it became very grey between that councillor interaction was around planning matters where, when they were contentious planning matters, the then general manager had to quite often remind councillors that they were not in the chamber because they were effectively debating items.

- Was that something that happened in the 2016-2020 term or did you see that happen during the previous term when you were there in 15?
- Certainly during the 2016-2020. Mr Parish, if I can add as well, one of the things that was detrimental to those briefings - and I'm not talking just to the business paper review briefings - that something that I would refer to as "nuisance behaviour" by certain councillors, nuisance behaviour where certain councillors would look to, you know, change the topic unnecessarily, would look to ask questions of the general manager and senior staff and, to use the vernacular, push their buttons. Does that make sense when I say that, Commissioner?

THE COMMISSIONER: Q. It may help me to have some examples, if you are able to give some. I think I understand what you're saying.

Yeah, there are examples where certain councillors would use every opportunity to put the limelight on themselves and to make it very uncomfortable and difficult for the senior members of staff.

35 36 37

38

- MR PARISH: Q. Was this a recurring theme amongst some of these councillors?
- Α. Yes.

39 40 41

- Can you tell the Commissioner who those councillors Q. were?
- Α. Councillor Scandrett.

43 44 45

42

- Q. Anvone else?
- On occasions Councillor Turland. 46 Α.

THE COMMISSIONER: Q. It's been suggested to me at some of the briefings that the interactions between the councillors and perhaps the senior staff led to the general manager moving or at least threatening to remove staff from meeting; did you ever see that?

6 A.

 Yes.

- Q. Did it happen once, more than once, you don't have to be exact?
- A. I can recall one particular instance where staff were waiting outside and I basically went outside and said, "Turn around, back you go".
- Q. And what caused you to do that?
- A. The behaviour. As I said, that last 12-month period was, um, was very difficult.
- Q. Was it behaviour between themselves or was it projected to staff?
- A. Ah, look, I think it was, unfortunately, a situation where it was pretty much the room.
- Q. Sorry, I just don't --A. Pretty much the room, councillors and senior staff.
- THE COMMISSIONER: I see. Yes, Mr Parish.
 - THE WITNESS: And more for the sake of senior staff attempting to bring some composure, composure. But, yeah, and when I say "all councillors" it's not like there were eight councillors standing up all ripping into each other, but you can appreciate the type of environment, I'm sure, that I'm trying to portray, Mr Commissioner.
 - THE COMMISSIONER: Q. Yes. How did that or did it have an effect on the staff that you worked with?

 A. Yes, I believe it did.
 - Q. And in what way?
 - A. I think, for staff who were close to the meeting process, it was one that certainly and we should talk about this, we should be much more honest and open about this but impacted on their mental well-being. I think that the colleagues who well, I'm certainly proud to call them colleagues but colleagues who during that time lent on each other because they needed to for the good of the organisation, because one of the things that we were very -

Q. And --

A. Because - sorry, Commissioner, for cutting you off there.

 Q. No, my fault.

A. -- for the pure reason that as an organisation, and this often gets missed, we have a fantastic workforce, we have a very good reputation in terms of, you know, our financial management, our environment sustainability branch, you know, wins awards. We are not like a lot of councils where, you know, there's issues back-of-house; the back-of-house of this organisation was run tight. So, whilst what was going on in front, we wanted to make sure that we just, from the back end of the operations, continued to keep the wheels spinning to use the vernacular.

 Q. And did that environment have an effect on the operations of the organisation, do you think?

A. I think we were - Commissioner, I believe we were able to minimise that to a great extent, we were able to minimise the impact of that. Obviously, having a situation post council where we had a number of transitional periods between general managers and staff leaving, that would have been very difficult for the organisation and that would have been straight in their face, and depending on the individuals, some may not have blinked an eyelid about that, but some would have seen that as the loss of close colleagues, but that's not within the remit of your terms of reference.

THE COMMISSIONER: Q. I understand. Yes, thank you.

 MR PARISH: Q. What impact did that councillor behaviour at briefings and in council meetings have on you, Mr Mooney?

A. Yeah, look, again, I'm a fairly resilient individual; you know, to an extent, you know, I thrive in an environment where, you know, if I'm going to be challenged, then I like to know that I'm prepared and can deal with responses from all avenues, but not to say that, it was frustrating and, you know, finance committee is a great example where often we would have questions peppered at us, you know, Code of Meeting Practice went out the window when it came to finance committee, but we would be peppered with questions as to, "You know, this report here, page 8 doesn't balance. Doesn't balance, there's no figure on here", and it would be as simple as turning the page and say, "Well, councillor, if you look at page 9, it's just a print roll, the total's on the next page". So it's hard to differentiate whether that was intentional, but it happened frequently.

And I recall the very last finance committee meeting we had before council was placed under administration, and I'm pretty sure it wasn't picked up on the audio, and it's probably unprofessional for me to share this, but I did turn around to the mayor of the day, Duncan Gair, and I said to him, I basically pleaded with him and saying, "Mate, this isn't the Gestapo", because that's effectively what it felt like, if you have the opportunity to witness that, it was just question after question after question, which is fine, that's my job and I was able to answer those, but it presents a level of distrust if someone else - if a lay person is watching that and going, why is the councillors going so hard? Is there issues we need to be aware of?"

THE COMMISSIONER: Q. I'll deal with your personal experience and then I'll explore with you whether you had discussions with others about it, but when you would put a report to council, whether in a finance committee meeting or in a council meeting, was there a general need to be prepared to, not just answer questions, but to almost defend your expertise and competence from time to time? My general experience here over the period is no, is Α. that that was never the case. I had a good relationship and was respected by the majority of councillors. incidents at finance committee were really only in that period, as I said, post bushfire, post pandemic, and were again only really from two councillors.

44

It certainly wasn't an environment where, in the nature of giving a report, the annual budget report, you know, this council has a - or the former council had an approach where they liked managers to present reports, which was fine and I didn't have any issue with that, and they found that was quite a good process.

45 46 47

Q. That's your personal experience; what about observations of others who had reports go before council? Did anyone discuss that issue with you?

A. I'm not aware of anyone who - again, apologise, probably not the right language to be using in this environment - but I'm not aware of anyone who had their pants pulled down on them. Senior staff, if they weren't used to presenting in that environment, typically people like myself, Ms Danielle Lidgard, Mr Nick O'Connor before he resigned, we would typically speak to those individuals and just walk them through how we would prepare for a council meeting to ensure that, you know, they didn't look silly. But, no, I wouldn't say that the councillors actively looked to embarrass staff in public at meetings.

THE COMMISSIONER: Thank you.

MR PARISH: Q. You mentioned that at the finance committee at least the Code of Meeting Practice was thrown out the window; by that I take it to mean that it wasn't being adhered to at least as the meeting got into - got into the meeting. Is that right?

A. Yeah, that's right, Mr Parish, and there's a bit of history behind that. Up until 2016 finance committee was seen as a committee of the whole: it's full council. So, in 2016 we amended the terms of reference for council's committees and essentially brought the finance committee into full council, we streamed it when streaming became live, and we also very much tried to align it to the ways of how a normal council meeting would be run.

The reason why it had previously been seen as a committee of the whole is because it was felt that there was a better opportunity and a more informal environment for councillors to ask questions about the budget. first arrived here in 2015, that's exactly what it was, a very informal environment, we were in the meeting room just over there, and we would still seek all the necessary formal resolutions that were required under 377. we, after the terms of reference for committees were amended, we then started meeting in the chamber, and for the first three years it was fine and in actual fact it elevated, in my view, the importance of the work that was being done within the organisation around developing sound financial management practices and, you know, strategies So, if anything, I think it was a real and policies. improvement in those first three years.

1 2	It was then again only during post pandemic, going online, and post bushfires that it just degenerated the
3 4	same way that meetings in general degenerated.
5 6	MR PARISH: Thank you.
7 8 9	THE COMMISSIONER: I see the time, Mr Parish, is that a convenient moment?
10 11 12 13	MR PARISH: Yes, although unless you want to explore other topics, I might be able to wrap things up in relatively short compass and not having had Mr Mooney
14 15 16	THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, I think I would benefit from at least a short break at the moment.
17 18	MR PARISH: I'm also conscious of that, yes.
19 20 21	THE COMMISSIONER: We might just take 15 minutes, Mr Mooney. If you would be so kind as to resume at 10 to 12?

28 29	THE COMMISSIONER: Mr Parish, are you ready to proceed?
30 31	MR PARISH: Yes, Commissioner.
32 33	THE COMMISSIONER: Thank you.
34 35 36 37 38	MR PARISH: Q. Mr Mooney, I'm just going to show you a document. You were referring before the break to a report to council on 12 May 2021; do you recall that? A. Correct. That's correct.
39 40 41	Q. Is that a copy of that document that you were referring to? A. Mr Parish, this is the report I was referring to.
42 43 44 45	MR PARISH: Thank you, Mr Mooney. It might be an appropriate moment to tender that document now, if that would be convenient.
46 47	THE COMMISSIONER: Yes. Let me just find my list.

Exhibit K is a copy of a report headed, "Station Street 1 Upgrade Project" presented to the ordinary meeting of 2 3 council on 12 May 2021. Mr Parish, that obviously enough is already a public document so that should go on the 4 5 website promptly, please. 6 7 <EXHIBIT #K - COPY OF A REPORT HEADED, "STATION STREET UPGRADE PROJECT" PRESENTED TO THE ORDINARY MEETING OF 8 COUNCIL ON 12/05/21. 9 10 MR PARISH: Thank you, Commissioner. 11 12 Can I just go back to some references you made to 13 specific incidents which left you with certain impressions 14 15 about the behaviour of councillors. Before I deal with some more specific incidents, just in respect of that 16 bushfires council meeting that you were referring to, did 17 you ever attend any of the community meetings post 18 19 bushfire? Mr Parish, no, I didn't. 20 21 22 Can you tell the Commissioner about any other specific 23 incidences which left you with an unfavourable impression about the council behaviour, Mr Mooney? 24 25 If you can just bear with me, Mr Parish? 26 27 Q. Of course. 28 Mr Parish, I have brought with me today a copy of an 29 email which I would suspect at some point may have been The email is subpoenaed as part of the public inquiry. 30 31 dated 25 February 2021 at 9.52 am. The subject description 32 is, "File note and formal Code of Conduct complaint 33 altercation with Councillor Turland 24 February 2021". 34 Now, it is a two-paged document with 15 points, Mr Parish, 35 would you like me to just quickly read through those to 36 outline the event?

46 47 At approximately 1.10pm on 24 February 2021 Ms Danielle Lidgard, group manager of corporate and community, came to my office to advise me that Councillor Turland was in the newly refurbished councillor chambers,

Commissioner, point 1:

a section of the building which has not 1 2 been formally handed over by the building contractor, Matrix. 3 4 Essentially the room we're in now, Commissioner: 5 6 7 I walked to the chamber because I was aware that the acting general manager had 8 approached Councillor Turland and requested 9 that he leave the chamber as it was still 10 deemed a construction site. At this stage 11 I followed the AGM into his office and we 12 discussed that the chamber was an active 13 worksite and that he should not be in that 14 15 part of the building. 16 17 At point (4): 18 19 The AGM then moved towards the chamber with intent to explain to the councillor that 20 the area was still an active building site. 21 I followed to ensure there was a witness to 22 23 the conversation. 24 25 The AGM explained in a very rational manner the reasons why the councillor could not 26 remain seated in the chamber and calmly 27 28 requested that he remove himself from the 29 chamber. 30 31 The councillor then explained that he had 32 his own sneeze guard, which in my opinion was grossly inadequate, and that was not 33 the only reason he had been told the 34 35 chamber could not be used. 36 The AGM then explained that contractors 37 would continue to enter the chamber and 38 39 that as recent as late as this morning electricians were in the room performing 40 The councillor then became 41 works. aggressive and demanded to know why the 42 43 meeting had been rescheduled to an online Zoom meeting. 44 45 day:

46 47 This was a meeting that was to take place later that

The AGM remained calm and continued to explain that due to the sneeze guards not being installed works in the chamber were continuing and that, for the councillor to be on site, he would have to be formally inducted to the site being in attendance with a site representative and wearing appropriate PPE.

The standoff continued for a few minutes. At that stage Mr Mark Pepping also came into the chamber due to the aggressive behaviour being displayed by Councillor Turland.

Councillor Turland then complained that he would not be able to attend the next briefing at 1.30pm, backyard burning policy. The AGM made several offers to find a room within the building not part of the construction site to view the briefing.

 Councillor Turland did not accept this offer and told staff present that he would return to his office. He then made a statement that he would "deal with all of this later with Bugalugs". The AGM challenged the councillor as to who he was referring to. At this stage the councillor said he was referring to the mayor.

Again, the AGM remained calm and explained that this was between the councillor and the mayor. The councillor then started to leave the meeting making a number of incoherent statements regarding the backyard burning policy, none of which could be understood by the staff present.

I then go on in this file note to make a comment that:

I am not someone who is afraid in these types of circumstances. Certain periods of my life, both professionally and through sporting experiences I've witnessed situations where personal safety of individuals have been clearly threatened. I would consider the aggressive, irrational behaviour displayed by Councillor Turland at this event as such an occasion.

I then go on to request that it be formally lodged as a Code of Conduct matter. So, obviously in written terms it probably doesn't go to explaining that it was a very intense environment in this room at the time, one that is not conducive to effective relationships between councillors and council staff members, and one that should not be subjected in any safe work environment, whether it be local government or any other industry, Commissioner.

Who would you like me to table that to?

THE COMMISSIONER: Mr Broad. If you would be so kind as to produce it to Mr Broad, Mr Broad will take a copy. I don't know whether you want to tender it or mark it. When that comes back Counsel Assisting can decide what he wishes to do with it.

Mr Parish.

- MR PARISH: Q. What was your impression of how the behaviour of Councillor Turland affected other people?

 A. Again, individuals deal with these things depending on their own thresholds.
- Q. What was your impression?
- A. I was frustrated. I was frustrated because I think it's an incident that I think didn't necessarily have to occur. I truly believed that Councillor Turland has anger management issues that, unfortunately on occasions like this, don't reflect him in the best light. I don't know if I'm overstepping my mark by making that statement, but I truly believe that there have been many, many occasions where Councillor Turland has worked within the best interests of the council, however the deterioration in the relationship between the then mayor and the then deputy mayor, you know, really, really impacted their working relationship.
- Q. Can you tell the inquiry of any other incidents similar in nature, either in respect of Councillor Turland or other councillors during the 2016-2020 term, or was this an exceptional event?

THE COMMISSIONER: Q. When you're referring to "the council" there, are you referring to the governing body or the organisation or both?

A. Oh, the body politic being able to function because of the actions of a few number of councillors disrupting proceedings so much, through a variety of different means; whether it be through the raising of notice of motions, whether it be through, you know, blaming technology during Zoom meetings that - it's very dubious whether it actually was technology or not or whether it was just an opportunity to unsettle the mayor.

It's very obvious if you view the last meetings of council, and on occasions I was seated adjacent to the mayor, it would be a fair assessment, and I'm sure he would agree with this, that he became flustered, and by becoming flustered didn't allow him to chair the meetings as effectively as what he would have liked.

The Zoom environment was something that was very difficult for him to transition to, whether that be an age thing or what, I'm certainly not being disrespectful, but it was a difficult environment which was then compounded by some of the nuisance tactics that were being played out by a handful of councillors.

Q. I take it you're familiar with the Code of Meeting Practice from your experiences?

A. Yeah, to a degree. To a degree, Commissioner.

Q. Was it applied effectively in council meetings? From an officer's perspective, the staff who were responsible for that did their very best to ensure that the Code of Meeting Practice was adhered to.

10 11 12

14 15

- Do you think that the mayor had a good grasp of the detail of the Code of Meeting Practice in his role as chair?
- Yes, I do. I believe he found it challenging to bring that to effect in those later council meetings.

16 17 18

20

21

22

- Was he supported by any of the other councillors in trying to bring the Code of Meeting Practice into effect in those challenging meetings?
- Yeah, I believe he was, but I don't think that that ultimately resulted in any significant improvement in how the meetings were run.

23 24 25

The code has, for example, measures that can be taken in instances of acts of disorder; I take it you're familiar with those?

26 27 28

So, meetings There was an occasion, and I can't have been suspended. recall the date but it was certainly when we were on Zoom, where the chair did use his power to suspend a meeting -I'm not sure if it was for five or 15 minutes - and the councillor who was - the reason why the meeting was suspended was given a warning that, if that behaviour continued beyond the meeting resuming, then he would be suspended from the meeting.

THE COMMISSIONER: Thank you.

45

MR PARISH: Q. Can I just expand on an answer you gave about the effect of the degradation of councillor behaviour on senior staff that you were talking about before. your impression did you see a change in the behaviour of the executive such as the general manager or the deputy general manager as a result of the behaviour of the councillors?

46 47

Yeah, I think that would be a fair comment to make,

Can you give any examples of the changes or the way that senior staff or executives conducted themselves? Firstly on a personal note, Mr Parish, I certainly saw a change in the way that they were managing the stress that related to each of their respective roles. Running a very complex business, you know, to I think it's over 50,000 residents now across the shire but, you know, a complex business that provides not only your roads, rates and rubbish which your typical metropolitan councils would, but, you know, the regional facilities, water and sewer as we're required to do, there's a lot of inherent stress that comes along with being senior executives in that role. then add onto that a very challenging political environment or a challenging political environment that is continuing to exacerbate itself: of course it added a lot of stress to each three of the senior executives.

To an extent I experienced that myself when I acted in the role for 12 months, so to some degree I can say that I share similar experiences that they would have. Did it affect them in their way - in their ability to continue to perform their roles? Well, I would say that there was obviously a greater focus on managing the politics than necessarily managing the business. It would be unfair for me to really answer those questions on their behalf.

 THE COMMISSIONER: Q. No, I think Counsel Assisting is just asking of your observations of what you felt rather than what was in their mind.

 A. Okay, well, thank you, Commissioner. My observations were that they were indeed under a lot of stress.

MR PARISH: Q. When you say "a greater focus on managing the politics instead of the business", can you give examples of your observation of that?

A. Yeah. So, the way I would respond to that question is, is the volume of councillor matters that were needing to be dealt with, councillor complaints that were coming through, Code of Conducts that were coming through, which obviously were managed by our public officer, but you know, the GM has some visibility over that. That's where a larger focus would have been on dealing with the dysfunctionality of the council. I hope that answers your question.

There's been observations and Yes, thank you. evidence that the council was a toxic workplace at least at the time of suspension. Do you have a view on that? Yeah. I'd refute that.

8 9 Can you tell us why?

I think, as is the case with any organisation that has over 450 people, is that you will find that there are essential different cultures, different levels of energy within each various part of the buildings.

10 11 12

14

15 16

17

18 19

20

21

I'm very proud - personally speaking, I'm very proud of the team of people that I led who supported me, an exceptionally talented group of people who I believe were very focused, knew their roles, knew that they were supported, knew that the support that they provided was appreciated, and there are a good handful of the parts of the business that I could say had similar cultures within that branch. That's not to say that there weren't other parts of the business where there were very poor cultures, but it certainly wasn't a situation, in my view, that the culture across the organisation was toxic.

22 23 24

26

27

28 29

30 31

32

There may be some examples provided through community surveys - not community, I'm obviously talking about consultation. There are some examples of staff surveys which have been provided, and yeah, there are some matters which the broader workforce had issues with: the need to design and modernise our remuneration framework was a major bugbear with a lot of staff. Those types of surveys in my experience allow staff the opportunity to really drive home on those points that they've been dissatisfied about that hadn't been addressed for a long time.

33 34 35

37

38

39

40

I see that as being very different to someone coming to work and sitting down all day and having nothing on their mind except for the fact that how annoyed they are: that doesn't happen, you know. People come to work, they want to enjoy their day's work, they want to be able to know that they can do it safely most importantly and then also, you know, go home to their friends and families.

41 42 43

45

46 47

One suggestion I'm aware of is THE COMMISSIONER: Q. that what was happening between the members of the governing body sort of had some effect on at least some of the staff in the organisation. Did you observe that? Yeah, there were instances, particularly after the

Q. It does. And I appreciate that, as you've said in your evidence, you're quite a resilient person in the face of potential conflict, but did you observe how that affected other people who may not be as resilient as you? A. Yes.

Q. And what did you observe of how the councillor behaviour impacted members of the staff in that category? A. Yeah, there were individuals who I would suggest were at the point of breaking. I don't think councillors were aware of that, I don't - you know, the line of communication wouldn't have filtered down to that, but there were certainly staff who, as a result of the response to the bushfires, were very upset, were very upset for the communities that they were working for.

Q. And it's been also suggested that some staff became embarrassed to work for the organisation. Did you ever hear anything of that kind?

A. Yeah, I have heard those statements.

Q. I take it, that's not something that - well, you tell me: was that something that you felt from time to time?

A. For a whole variety of reasons --

Q. About that --

A. -- it was difficult to reconcile the work that I believed - the good work that I believed we were doing as an organisation, it was difficult to reconcile that with the outward facing view of the general public.

 Q. And does that tell you something about how effective the organisation was in getting its message out?

A. Commissioner, I would absolutely agree this council needs to move forward and moving forward a complete rethink of how it engages and communicates with its community, its residents, it really has to be number one priority in terms of rebuilding that trust.

Q. Yes, that was going to be my next question. On one view there's an environment where it might be said that the

- Q. When you say it's a small minority group: I've had a number of different community organisations and tourism and economic development organisations come forward, and I've heard it said before things like, "This comes from a small minority". How am I to understand that when I have this is not critical of you, I'm seeking your input to help me reconcile this because I have a number of community groups putting forward their view and what they feel, then the counter view is, "Oh, it's a small perception of the community".
- A. Commissioner, may I share my view with you on that?
- Q. Yes.

 A. My view on that is that we are a government organisation that provides services, programs and facilities to over 50,000 residents within the shire. Our focus should be on the 50,000 residents within the shire. Are mums and dads able to play on safe sports fields on the weekend with their kids? Are our residents able to be comforted, you know, assured that their waste collection will be collected when they expect it to be collected?

There's a lot of talk about roads at the moment, it's an area that we need to invest in, but that is an area where, yeah, you certainly are hearing more and more than just the lobby groups but from the broader populous that that's a level - a service that we provide where we need to invest more.

So, from my perspective I look at the relationship between the council and the community as being the relationship with that much larger group, not necessarily the lobby groups.

And to a lot extent, you know, I've heard this comment quite often, that people go, "The Highlands is an ageing shire and there's a lot of people that have retired from Sydney, and there's not a lot of young people down here". To an extent I refute that. I expect the fact that housing prices certainly don't - makes it challenging for young people to say in the area, but a lot of young people do want to stay in the area and a lot of these people are people who are leaving for work at 5, 6, getting home at 7; they don't want to deal with council. They want to know that those basic services that I've just outlined are dealt with and that's the only touch point that they want to have with council. So, to hear comments such as, "Oh well, we're older community", I don't necessarily think that that's entirely correct.

THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, thank you.

- MR PARISH: Q. Can I just pick up on that topic and bring it back to the Station Street upgrade. Do you know of any policies or procedures that were followed by council in respect of communication and consultation on that Station Street upgrade?
- A. My answer to that is, no. I would assume that there would have been some form of community engagement strategy developed for the project, but I wouldn't be able to say with 100 per cent confidence that I've seen that document.

 Q. Do you accept, perhaps from what you've just said, that in significant projects like the Station Street bypass, council needs to go beyond a tick box exercise, and I don't mean that critically or pejoratively, but it needs to tailor at least in big strategic projects its approach to the fact that there are active community groups, the fact that there are at least statistically an older professional class of people? Would that assist in your view in your impression?

A. Yes, I agree, it does, and I - again, it comes back to a subjective view that we were talking about earlier on - I would see things like council opening a dedicated, you know, street shop front to allow residents to come in and talk about a particular process - project. And granted, I'm aware that that has been criticised because it wasn't seen as genuine consultation, but that is a step that is very unusual for a council to take with respect to a capital works project. And so, yeah, I do believe there were steps taken above and beyond what would normally be the tick of the box.

Q. Going forward, do you think that that is perhaps an approach that needs to be embraced by council to deal with at least the observations you've made about the active community in the shire on certain subjects at least?

A. Look, Mr Parish, I certainly don't pretend to be a community engagement expert, but yes, certainly

MR PARISH: I don't have any further questions on specific topics at this stage, Commissioner.

 THE COMMISSIONER: Q. Have you got Exhibit K, the 12 May 2021 - sorry, I need to lean forward, I keep being reminded. Have you got what is now Exhibit K, the Station Street upgrade report to the 12 May 2021 meeting?

A. Yes, Commissioner.

Q. You were still at the council at this time, I think? A. That's correct, Commissioner.

 Q. Were you involved in the preparation of this report?

A. That's correct, Commissioner, between three, four staff, basically provided a draft and then I, for want of a better term, kicked it into shape.

 Q. And do I take it that from your perspective it sets out at least in general terms a history of how the project came about, how it proceeded, and ultimately the reasons why there was a recommendation not to proceed?

 A. Essentially, Commissioner, without writing a novel which you potentially could about this project, this was - the intent of this report was exactly that.

Q. I understand, and I appreciate there's a document in front of me, but just in general terms could you just describe the reasons why ultimately the recommendation was made not to proceed?

A. The fundamental risk was around our capacity to actually deliver the works. There were too many unknown risks, whether that be through TAHE and the use of the proposed land swap. The $38m was a figure that obviously concerned greatly the group manager of project delivery and myself. It's essentially for those reasons, yeah.

THE COMMISSIONER: Thank you. Yes, Mr Parish.

MR PARISH: Q. Mr Mooney, is there any other topic you want to address the Commissioner on? 1 2 No, I would just a couple of things, firstly, like to thank you, the Commissioner, and you, Mr Parish, for 3 today's events, and also to probably make a parting 4 5 statement that I genuinely enjoyed my time at Wingecarribee 6 Shire Council for the seven years that I was here, and for 7 the good people who are still here, hope that there is an outcome from the public inquiry that allows the 8 organisation to move forward and start to rebuild that 9 trust and confidence with the community. 10 I wish the organisation and the community all the best moving forward. 11 12 THE COMMISSIONER: Q. Just in that last observation you 13 said "to rebuild the trust and confidence of the 14 community", do I take it from that you think it has been 15 lost as a result of the events over, say --16 17 Now, obviously with the suspension of the councillors, Α. the administrator being appointed and the public inquiry 18 19 now being undertaken, I think that that's a fair 20 assessment. 21 22 But do you think that was something that was happening 23 before the ministerial intervention? 24 Yes, Commissioner, yes. 25 THE COMMISSIONER: 26 Thank you. 27 28 MR PARISH: Q. I might just as a formal matter, 29 Mr Mooney, ask you to identify the email you were referring So, you have before you an email chain between 30 to before. 31 two different email addresses from yourself but also 32 including emails to various members of staff at the 33 council; do you have that in front of you?

MR PARISH: I tender that.

45 THE COMMISSIONER: Do you mark it or tender it?

47 MR PARISH: I might mark it for now and then come back to

20 21	THE COMMISSIONER: Is there an application?
22 23 24	CR SCANDRETT: Thank you, Mr Glover. I have two matters of clarification.
25 26	THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, what are the topics?
27 28 29	CR SCANDRETT: One relates to the statements by Mr Mooney in regards to leaking of confidential documents.
30 31 32	THE COMMISSIONER: I don't think he used the word "confidential" but anyway, yes, what's the second topic?
33 34 35	CR SCANDRETT: The second one is clarification about the amount of $38m.
36 37 38 39	THE COMMISSIONER: Mr Riley, you're now being pumped to the back, if you have an objection you'll have to just shout a bit louder so I can
40 41 42	MR RILEY: My instructions are that Mr Mooney doesn't object to being questioned on this.
43 44 45	THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, but if you have an objection to a particular question, feel free to voice it, you will just have to be a bit louder than usual.
46 47	MR RILEY: Thank you.

THE COMMISSIONER: Which section of the Local Government Act?

MR BROAD: I'll endeavour to find it, Commissioner.

1 2 3 4 5	THE COMMISSIONER: Q. I'm sorry, Mr Mooney, if you need to confer with Mr Riley, I'll allow that, but let's just see where I go for the moment. A. Yeah, I believe this should address the question I would have of Mr Riley.
6 7 8	THE COMMISSIONER: If anyone else knows other than Mr Broad, feel free to sing it out.
9 0 1	MR BROAD: I was looking at Part IV, Commissioner, but
2 3 4	THE COMMISSIONER: Yes. I had in my mind there was a provision that dealt with the use of council information, and that it was potentially an offence provision.
5 6	MR BROAD: You have a situation where 664 may apply.
17 18 19 20 21	THE COMMISSIONER: That may be the one, let me just turn that up. Yes, that is the provision. Just come back into the witness box, Mr Mooney.
22 23 24 25 26 27	Councillor Scandrett, Section 664 of the Local Government Act, at least on one view, has application to the circumstance you're providing and provides that it's an offence provision with a maximum penalty of 50 penalty units. In that case, why should I compel Mr Mooney to answer that question?
29 30 31	CR SCANDRETT: Commissioner, these allegations are very broad, they're not specific, and I think they need to be qualified in a precise manner.
32 33 34 35 36	THE COMMISSIONER: Q. Well, let me ask you this question: do you know as a fact who it was? A. Commissioner, have I my suspicions but I do not have any proof.
38 39 40 41	THE COMMISSIONER: Then that's as far as I think it should be taken. Suspicions in that context, given it's an offence provision, I don't think are appropriate to be explored in that way.
12 13	Yes, your next question?
14 15	CR SCANDRETT: Thank you, Commissioner.

Q.

47

My second question was the amount of $38m, Mr Mooney,

1 2 3	that you've detailed variously, as recently as December 2020. Is that the same amount that was in the business papers on the meeting - that meeting of council on or
4 5 6 7 8	A. Commissioner, I can't recall that. Without having the business paper in front of me that's not a question that I am able to answer.
9 10 11	THE COMMISSIONER: All right, for my benefit, Councillor Scandrett, I'm not sure I understood what you're asking?
12 13 14 15 16 17	CR SCANDRETT: Commissioner, my recollection is that the amount that was presented to council briefing at that time was in the order of $32m to $34m and I was therefore seeking clarification where the amount of 38 came from, which is another step further on. Well, I've seen the amount of $36m in media reports.
19 20 21 22	THE COMMISSIONER: Just pause, just pause. What I asked was what your question was. You'll have an opportunity when you give evidence.
23 24	CR SCANDRETT: Indeed, thank you.
25 26 27 28 29	THE COMMISSIONER: And you'll have an opportunity after the evidence to make submissions. So, I think Mr Moody's answer to the question at least as he understood it was, he can't remember.
30 31	CR SCANDRETT: He has and I thank him for that.
32 33	THE COMMISSIONER: Is that all?
34 35	CR SCANDRETT: Yes. Thank you, Mr Mooney.
36 37 38	THE COMMISSIONER: Mr Riley, do you seek leave to examine Mr Mooney?
39 40	MR RILEY: I don't have any questions.
41 42 43	THE COMMISSIONER: You don't need to stand. Mr Parish, any re-examination?
44 45	MR PARISH: No, Commissioner.
46 47	THE COMMISSIONER: Is there any reason why Mr Mooney ought not be excused?

THE COMMISSIONER:

Thank you.

Q. Mr Mooney, that completes your evidence, thank you for coming along today and I appreciate that answering a summons takes you away from other things that you would no doubt rather be doing. You are excused from further attendance under your summons and you're free to go. Thank you?

<THE WITNESS WITHDREW

 THE COMMISSIONER: Mr Parish, I understand the next witness is here, should we proceed on and sit until that witness is finished or how would you like to proceed?

MR PARISH: I think we should sit on, Commissioner, and see how we go.

THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, all right. I won't adjourn at 1. Why don't you tell me if you get to a point where you think some adjournment for the luncheon period is appropriate and we'll take it then.

MR PARISH: Yes, thank you.

THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, the next witness, please?

MR PARISH: The next witness is Brigid Kennedy.

<BRIGID KENNEDY, sworn:</pre>

[12.44pm]

THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, thank you, Mr Parish.

<EXAMINATION BY MR PARISH:</pre>

MR PARISH: Q. Thank you, Ms Kennedy. Could I start by asking you to describe your background, your vocation, your experience and how long you've lived in the shire.

A. How long have you got?

Q. As long as you need.

A. Thank you. I am a chef. I had a very big business in Sydney called Simmer on the Bay and I also - so, functions and that kind of thing. I was the Chamber of Commerce head for 10 years there and worked extensively with City of Sydney and also created the Sydney Alliance and the Sydney Arts and the Walsh Bay Arts alliance for 10 years while up there.

.31/03/2022 (4)

On moving to the Highlands I have had a farm in the Highlands since 2001 and I lived part-time in the Highlands from 2011, where I bought The Lock and we turned that into a paddock to plate restaurant, so chef and an event is probably - and farmer are probably my attributes.

I joined the Moss Vale and rural - it was the Moss Vale Chamber of Commerce when I first joined and we added rural to the chamber so that we could be looking - nobody was really looking after the farmers and the producers, and we particularly wanted to do that because Moss Vale was quite - was more the trade town for that sector. We had 28 empty shops at the time and we stayed out more alone as our - the chamber to look after Moss Vale that really did need some attention at the time; as I said, there were 28 empty shops.

- So, I joined when there was a fellow called Bob Seldon who was a very, very good president of Moss Vale at the time and I followed him. We had another lovely president, Greg Mills, and then he resigned and I took over as president. I'm also --
- Q. When did that take place, when did you become president?
- A. In 2018, so I've been president for four years. Also I'm a chair of the well, co-chair with a wonderful man called Hugh Clarke of the agri and equine sectors, because I also do breed thoroughbreds as well for sale, so I'm part of the Southern Highlands key stakeholders group.
- Q. Thank you. How many members does the Moss Vale and Rural Chamber of Commerce have?
- A. We have two tiers of membership. We have over so there's a gold and silver membership. So, we have, north of around about 150-odd of the gold members and about 600 of the silver members which is a free membership.
- Q. Did you consult with that membership group before making your submission to this inquiry?
- A. In the Small Business Commissioner's report it is very extensively populated by my members. We are well-known as,

- Q. Yes. In your role in the industry and the community, were you involved in any groups that were formed by or consulted with the council?
- A. Very much so. The stakeholders' group was very was and is a very inclusive group and so certainly felt that working with councillors to understand where they were going, direction, and how that could help our members was very beneficial.

 Q. Can you give me your experience about the Wingecarribee Shire Council economic plan?

A. We as a stakeholders group were critical. We certainly as Moss Vale and rural were critical. COVID had just started when it was happening and there was no mention of it at all in the plan, and yet it was going to be so and it has subsequently - affected us so bad - you know, so hugely economically, and yet it wasn't even a factor. The numbers weren't correct at the time of the draft. It was a top-down process in that what we were told in what was a very small amount of time that it was supposed to be of consultancy, we were told what we already knew and asked to comment on that, which seemed irrelevant.

When we were looking for full consultancy in terms of, as industry to actually give our format of what we were wanting, needing and feeling in terms of direction, but it was already ordained even before we were spoken to what was going in the report, and indeed when the report did come out we'd pretty much already seen it on the plaques, you know, when we were being "consulted with", in inverted commas.

Q. Can I just tease that out. What sort of consultation process were you involved in? Were they meetings or?

A. Well, there was one fellow who was presenting his findings for economics of the shire on some PowerPoint presentations and then we were just asked to comment at the end.

No.

Α.

- Q. Can you give me any other of your impressions in respect of that strategy?
- A. Well, look, I have to say that as it was a consultant used, we had looked at 2010, one that was actually prepared by council officers themselves, who I actually have great respect, the likes of Susan Stannard who is fantastic and has a real understanding of the shire, she was part of the strategy; Michael, who's currently been working in this regard as well and has just given us a presentation on the producer's door and how that's going to effect the LEP; amazing people and far better qualified than a consultant who was helicoptered in to have prepared those reports.

- Q. Did you interact with council at all following the bushfires in 2019-2020?
- A. We had a red hot go at it.

- Q. Can you explain what you mean by that?
- A. Well, our stakeholders group had met even before the you know, when the green fires to the north of us, green wattle fire was on, and could see devastation coming and we met in early December. And we were wanting to put together something that was going to be proactive to what we could see was going to be really problematic, and these involved things like so, putting all our lovely industry and rural heads on about how it could be that, you know, the Airbnbs that were empty could potentially be there for people to, you know, as emergency housing and, you know, some farms emergency potential for animals to go to and all of these kind of things and we were very much shut out of the process and told, "Not your remit".

- Q. Who were you trying to contact or engage with in that process, at what level of council?
- A. Well, the person who was in charge of the bushfire resilience at the time, you'll have that documented who that person was.

- Q. Did you attempt to engage with councillors at that stage?
- A. No, we were going through the proper process of the person that they had put in charge of that area.

 Q. Did you attend any of the meetings which followed the bushfire, either council or community meetings?

A. I didn't because there was three representatives from our greater group that were part of that; I was part of the process that underpinned that initially.

- Q. Do you recall any feedback from those three representatives?
- A. Yes, but only two were met that they only met with them twice, and these guys are very experienced in crisis and in of our industry group in crisis in rural, you know, they're great thinkers and to be shut out of the process it was a great shame I think for the whole community actually, particularly the inaction that happened where we could have, you know, really all worked together, yeah. That top-down process doesn't work very well.
- Q. By "top-down process" you mean the impression that at some level of council decisions were being made and there was no opportunity for consultation or communication; is that what --
- A. Correct.
- Q. And by that, is there any particular level of the council that you're referring to? Are you referring to the councillors or senior staff or?
- A. Senior staff, yeah.
- Q. Did you ever attend council meetings?
- A. Yes.

Q.

A. Well, particularly for various members who would come to me for advocacy, and when we felt that there was potential conflict, because there was various councillors who had particular areas of conflict with parts of the LEP, and that were quite politicised. The area of 2.8 came up very, very regularly, and there was areas which are still a great concern actually, because the process to get them back into the LEP are so arduous and affecting us incredibly badly now, like the way staff accommodation is prohibited use in our LEP and at a time when we cannot get staff and we're unable to house them on farms, et cetera, et cetera, it's very, very difficult, and those sorts of things were politicised - they are in the state template - but they were politicised out by our councillors; that was

What time period did you attend council meetings?

 The 2.8, the restaurants were taken out of rural zones although they were in surrounding LEPs, and our great visitor economy potentials, draw cards, you know, destination, invitation, you know, it's all over. Victoria, they do it incredibly well - they were put out of our shire which was a great shame because there's a great trend worldwide and globally - you know, Maggie Beer put the whole of South Australia on the map because she had a restaurant that, based on the fact that she couldn't sell her pheasants, you know, those were the kinds of things that support our producers and we've worked very hard in the last five years to get that back and reinstate it, but the fact it was taken out, you know, as political reasons for not wanting them as neighbours, or whatever it is.

 And the 2.8s came under serious concern because that -when restaurants were taken out 2.8, which was the temporary use, was the only thing that was available to our producers to be able to use, and so, they were given the equivalent of 60 days that they were able to operate to do events or, you know, restaurateuring in the rural zones.

- Q. Could I just tease that out?
- A. Yeah.

- Q. Clause 2.8 of the LEP refers to the temporary use of land.
- A. Yeah.

Q. And you were referring to the restaurants being taken out of the LEP. By that do you mean that zoning took place in such a way that restaurants were no longer able to operate in certain parts of the shire?

A. Yeah, that's right. They were only really allowed to operate in the urban areas, and of course there's far greater visitor - you know, the visitor economy and the trends are that people want to be out where it's grown and that the chefs are wanting to actually be really in touch with their own food and grow their own food.

Q. Do I take it from your evidence then that chefs or people who wanted to provide hospitality and food had to use clause 2.8 as a way of seeking approval which had various temporal and conditional limits on it; is that correct?

1	A. That's right, but then there was some very great
2	anxiety was given to a lot of people that were trying to
3	do - because there was events as well. You know, weddings
4	down here is a great economy for us, it fills our
5	accommodation, you know, people staying overnight, there's
6	some very good data that says how much they contribute to
7	our economy and our shops and retail and everything else,
8	and so, shutting them out - because one particular
9	councillor actually had, you know, had a friendship next
10	door to someone who had one of these spaces; it was really
11	unfortunate and it went as a ripple through so that then
12	everyone else who was applying for a 2.8 also came under
13	that same sort of blowtorch.

46 47 can with it, and I personally used it, so I was able to certainly for our members anybody working with it, I was then able to give them direct advice on how it could be worked with. Certainly there were other things in the state template that would have been better for our farmers and producers and visitor economy for folk to be able to use, but our councillors had taken it out in their own wisdom, and so, we could only work with what we had.

- You attended a roundtable economic forum on 25 June 2021; is that correct?
- Α. Yes.
- Can you tell me your impression and recollection of that event?
- Firstly, I was thrilled that it was convened. if you look at the Small Business Commissioner's list of recommendations, it's in the top four as a good start. think you'll recall that I referred to the top-down kind of method of working with industry that really wasn't - you were talking about appropriate - that really wasn't appropriate. I'd come from the City of Sydney where, it was amazing the way they would do their industry consultation and it would be broken down into workshops and then all correlated between groups at the end so everybody could see very visibly. This was sort of lip service to all of that.

When I first came down it was one of the first enquiries of made of this - of the executive when I asked for a meeting and said, "What public consultations do you do?" And I was told at the time, "Oh, that's something we're always going to get around to, but we feel that our ratepayers are more interested in their potholes and their roads". And I said, "Well, I would say that statement is an example of your not having done the public consultation to actually figure out what it is that they really are interested in", and certainly their own economic forecast and how they're going to run through the terrain of planning and DAs and what have you is very much uppermost in their minds, so as a chamber head it was one of the things that I felt was really important.

I certainly do think that it was great that they had started, but they just didn't even know how to do it properly, and they didn't look hard enough on our exemplary examples of how it was done well, you know, didn't look

Q. And are you referring there to, in the 2016-2020 term, both the staff and the councillors, or one or the other?

A. Look, I suppose I probably have a narrower view; you know, there's other greater areas, like industry - well with, construction, roads, you know, all that kind of thing. My narrower frame was more around the rural and visitor economy. You know, so much was brought to my attention from my members. You asked earlier, you know, are they fully conversant on me being here, and it's for them that I am here, and there have been so many - I mean, in fact the first two pages of the examples that the Small Business Commissioner created, it was, "They are all my members. They all personally came to me and asked, 'Can you find out what is going on with this?'"

It was one person that I was able to go to, being Mark Pepping, and he would take my call, and it was with the permission of that particular - you know, of whatever person I was asking about, that then was not disclosing. And he would help, because I'm a lay person obviously, and so is the person who is making that application, so he would help discern where there were obstacles or what issues there were potentially and I was always grateful for that and much more knowledgeable on account of it.

Where sometimes it was to do with, you know, the Fire Department had given a ruling and so where they were blaming council and, you know, the member was blaming council, it was an external party, so then I was able to go back and talk to the members about, you know, what was the reality about it. But then there was other issues that were just not acceptable; you know, things like, when they've just lost paperwork over a particular winery's area where he had his - and he couldn't get his Liquor Licence because they lost the paperwork, so he had to move, where in actual fact when they did eventually find it he would never have had to have moved. Then it sat on somebody's desk for six week - six months, and he almost went out of business, so those are the folk that I would go in to bat for and ask the questions, "Why is this happening?", and generally we would find an answer.

 Q. Is it your opinion that there had been no support for the visitor economy in the shire area for at least the last five years or so?

A. Only five?

- Q. Well, tell me what your experience --
- A. Sorry to be sarcastic, I didn't mean it to be that way.
- Q. Tell me of your experience?
- A. You know, it's just very jaded on that topic and it's been of deep upset. When I came down from Sydney and I'd created a for vivid, a trail all through Walsh Bay and figured that down here it's the kind of thing that everybody needed to be more inclusive in order to bring that visitor economy about, and so, I created a thing called with a gorgeous woman called Jill Dyson who had FoodPath and to bring some, how would I put it, to bring everybody together so that as a hub people would know these wonderful producers and restaurants and wineries that we had, but so that you could go to one place and find out everything about it and there was nothing there of that. And I was like, "Well, who's asleep at the wheel here?", you know.

And then as I met each individual - and can I just tell you, that there was over 120 of those individuals, so it's no small sector, and all of them doing incredible things; I mean, we've got award winning amazing producers. Who's talking about it? No-one. And then, you know, people would say as I was going round, people would say, "Well, I'll only sign up and bring all this together if you have nothing to do with Destination Southern Highlands". And I went - I was flabbergasted, but I gave that commitment and I did at all times, you know, pool my full lock and try and work with them in order to bring - you know, give them content because there was certainly no food or producer content.

And then when we had pulled the majority of the trail together and we did it all, because there was so much - when I first got down here I only thought, you know, 20 to 30 lovely producers: 120, 130 and it kept growing, so we nestled them into the village component and then opened each area in that way, and there was always an excuse of why the office, you know, the Destination Southern

Highlands wasn't going to be there even though the councillors were there and also the state politicians, the state MPs.

Then when there was eventually a conversation about, you know, sharing content once we'd got to critical mass, I was given the opportunity of joining in with the website, and I'm so used to dealing with government, and grants, and the process, and what are the laws, and I had to walk away when I was told that it was non-negotiable, there was only one website designer that was allowed, it had to be the one that they used, and of course the reports that Viv May has had has uncovered all of that, which we all knew five years ago what was going on, and it was a deep distress, so we were not able to share that content with Destination Southern Highlands and we'd then ended up going directly always to share our content with the greater of destination New South Wales and Destination Sydney Surround South because we weren't able to share it in a transparent manner.

Q. Can I ask your impression of the strategic direction of council? Do you have any impression or view on whether you clearly understand what the - or I should say, is it clearly communicated to you as you understand it the strategic direction of the council, and can you give me any impressions that you have about any deficiencies that you see in the strategic direction of the council?

A. Look, I think that there was no room between fortnights to create strategy because there was so much anxiety and acrimony between the councillors that it went from fortnight to fortnight and no strategy could be made because all they were doing was playing catch-up on and knee-jerk reaction to what was going on.

So, you know, I heard one person say, who had actually been part of the creation of the economic strategy you were referring to before, when criticised about why there was no KPIs, and it's like, "Well, we don't want to have to answer the councillors". Well, heavens above. And that was the strategy that we were getting for the next 10 years? So I think that really sort of summed it up.

- Q. By fortnight to fortnight you're referring to council meetings; is that correct?
- A. Correct. Can I add one thing to that?

- Q. Of course. 1
 - The politicising of the DAs, and I won't be critical of the staff and the culture that was borne from it is, depending on who's mates were who and where the councillors were seen, they could pull up a DA out of their briefing notes at any point, and where there is a strategy of template, you know, state template and LEP, that the planners were, you know, ruling by the rules for the most part and as things were politicised and their decisions were criticised or thrown out by a five or latterly a four plus a casting vote, there's no strategy could be made when it was such a harebrained, you know, pick a, you know, one out that they could isolate or were vindictive about or whatever.

You know, I'll give an example of - and you can see it in the video that was made at the December meeting about the public consultation of the economic development strategy. And one fellow - and I'm going to say that I have no for or against their DA - but he stood up and said, "My DA was given the green light by your planning staff but you and council have put it aside. Why is that?" mayor said, "I just didn't like your DA". How can anybody have a strategy when you've got that attitude? And how can our planning department, you know, who come under severe criticism, but how can they know how to pull their rules You know, it's really been a very trying last four years.

A. That's right Commissioner, yes, it is.

- 1 Q. That went well.
 - A. That would be a "no".

Q. All right, what I'll do, I think I'll reserve my questions to the very end --

A. That's okay.

- Q. No, it's easier that way.
- A. Because once I swivel round, and I can also follow a bit with the lips and things so I should be all right. But if I need you to repeat something I'll ask you, if that's all right. But I thought I'd just let you know.

Q. If at any stage you don't hear or understand any of the questions from Counsel Assisting or myself, please tell us and we'll do better.

Mr Parish.

<EXAMINATION BY MR PARISH:</pre>

[2.16pm]

MR PARISH: Q. Thank you, Commissioner. Can I start with a bit of personal background, how long you've lived in the area, your vocation?

A. I've been in and out of the shire all my life because, since before I was born we've had property here. I went to school here for a period of time. I moved to the area full-time to live in 2012 and my background or my work is, I do strategic business planning and marketing. I ran a company in Sydney for 20 years, we predominantly served high end corporates such as your Lend Leases, those sort of companies, so that was my background. And when I moved here to try to run for council I decided not to work at all during that time because I felt it was a full-time commitment to be a councillor, so for my term I didn't take on any work.

Q. You've covered it slightly already, but you were a councillor for the term 2012-2016; is that correct?

A. That's right, yeah.

- Q. Did you from time to time attend council meetings in the 2016-2020 term or otherwise observe the behaviour of councillors during that latter term?
- A. I did indeed because I was still very interested in the future of the shire, so I did on occasion when there were specific DAs or contentious issues coming up I would attend or I would talk to groups. I was also approached in my capacity as having been a councillor, and knowing how things worked and who was who, if you like, I did get approached by either individuals or groups to help to give some guidance, and one in particular obviously was Station Street.

- Q. Thank you. I'll ask you about your impressions of the two terms shortly, but we'll start with the 2012-2016 term when you were a councillor. Can you give me your general impressions about how council meetings were run and the interaction of councillors between each other in those council meetings in that term?
- A. I was actually pretty shocked. Having come from the business sector, the private sector, where I would often have to go into board meetings which I regarded council as the board of the shire, that was the way I looked at it. So, I was fairly shocked at the way things were conducted and it was disappointing because I felt that we were neither prepared correctly as councillors, I felt the preparation that we received was very poor, and by that I mean two things. The courses that are supplied to councillors that you go along to when, you know, induction period, all of that sort of thing, they might I mean, honestly, you could have slept through them and not missed a thing that was valid or useful.

The second side of it was in terms of how we were prepped as councillors before we would come into a meeting, our briefings and the information we were given. It was poor, it was really poor.

When we got into council, and I'll have to say that when I - the first two years that I was a councillor I was in what was known as "the block of five", and we therefore, if you like, had the power of the vote as long as we all stuck together. This is not healthy for a council, this is not the good way for a community to get the best outcome because what it does is it sets up an antagonistic arena straight away, and councillors spend far more time trying to out do each other and out manoeuvre, or set up, or create mischief and havoc in such an arena than they actually do concentrating on the legislation, the issues at hand and so forth.

I saw a disparity between how the councillors themselves prepared for these council meetings. Some people were prepared, others obviously hadn't even read their papers. So we often had situations where councillors were really not up to speed with what they were discussing, this further inflamed the situation.

When I resigned halfway through my term from the Liberal Party and decided to run and stay on as an independent because I couldn't countenance what I was being required to do, I found that, as I predicted, the vacancy that I created in the block of five would be filled by a particular council, which did happen, and it was back to swear one. So --

THE COMMISSIONER: Just pause there a moment, Mr Parish, are you going to bring this to the 2016 - are you going to tie this to the current term of council?

MR PARISH: Yes.

THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, all right.

MR PARISH: Q. Continue.

A. So, it remained throughout that term, very antagonist, very personal. Now, I maybe shouldn't have been - I was allowed to stay because I arrived before the other witness had finished giving a comment, but I think it was interesting, the personal attacks that were attempted, the mischief that was attempted, all of this does undermine the purpose that we're here for which is to represent the community and to progress the shire in the best possible way.

As a councillor or as I found things got pretty heated. We had councillors quite blatantly bait other councillors during the council meetings, knowing full-well that the councillor would rise to the bait, and this is sort of schoolyard behaviour, it's not what you expect to find in a professional arena and certainly not one where you're supposedly making decisions on a 110-plus million dollar per annum business, so I found it very poor. I think I've answered, yeah.

Q. Can I ask you about the induction training given, your own personal experience. What was that form of training, was it one-on-one --

A. No.

First of all when you come to council the staff here, you know, ran what they call an induction, and that was my introduction to death by PowerPoint, which is the way this In other words, you had a council tended to operate. PowerPoint up there and a staffer would read out point-by-point by point, which I found intensely boring and a complete waste of time because, if you're going to get anything out of a briefing, you should be given those notes prior to coming into the room so that you can then ask the staffer or the person conducting the presentation, "Well, what does clause X, Y, Z mean? Can vou elaborate a bit more? I can read what it says in plain English, but if this was the situation, how would I apply it", or whatever. So, there wasn't really anything much that the council that we had here could give us that you couldn't have read in a little handbook, you know, and digested it, fine, I get all the - it was very simplistic and really was just very, very basic.

We were then offered by council, as all councillors I believe are throughout New South Wales, to attend courses that are run down in Sydney. I presume they're run by the OLG, Office of Local Government. And I think we attended them at one of the TAFE buildings in Sydney from memory. Again, absolutely useless. I mean, they don't fit you for purpose. The responsibilities that you face when you come on to a council - and I don't think most people who are first-timers are prepared for it - there's an enormous amount that you are given and that your are expected to read in reports and so forth. Now, if you're a lawyer you can probably get through it a bit faster and understand it a bit better, but if you're not then you really need to kind of read things once or twice to get the gist of it, and if there's planning issues that come into play, for example, you've got to go back and read the legislation if you're gonna make an informed decision, and that's a critical word I think that was missing 90 per cent of the time in this council: informed decision-making was not enabled.

45

So these courses that we went down to down in Sydney, as I said, they were a complete waste of time. I felt that they didn't give me anything more than an adult could have gleaned for themselves just as a matter of obvious course, how you would conduct yourself.

Our mayor at the time made a suggestion which was, "Could councillors attend the Australian Institute of Directors course".

I got more out of that week than I was ever going to get from a government sponsored or conducted information because it took you through all aspects; it took you through financial, it took you through operations, it took you through governance, it took you through risk assessment, it took you through a whole range of things that were important because it's teaching people how to be a board director. And, as one of your witnesses this

And there's a perception by both staff and by councillors during my time, "Oh no, this is not a business" and I said, "What is it if it's got profit and loss if it has to run on a budget?", you know, and we are talking about our community. Our community are our shareholders, it's their money, that's where it comes from, and it is a business, and councillors should be fit for purpose, they are the board, and I found that that was something that was simply not apparent - a couple of councillors thought that way but the vast majority didn't. Some of the councillors when we were offered this course absolutely pooh-poohed it and said, "Why would we? I'm not on a board, I'm not a board, I'm not a board director, why would we?" Et cetera, et cetera, and it was a great pity because I think that they would have learned a lot from it, and in fact, if I was ever asked, "What could councils in Australia do to improve their councillors' outcomes from councillors, it would be that that's a mandate, that they all have to have completed that course before they were allowed to run for council".

45

46 47

- Q. Did you feel at least after you'd done the directors course, that you understood your statutory roles and responsibilities as a councillor?
- A. Yes, I did. I had a much clearer idea and one of the things particularly that it brought home to me was that you cannot assume that the report that you're being given is correct, you cannot assume anything, you must do your own work, you must do your own due diligence, and by that I mean read the report, thoroughly understand it and, if necessary, go and talk to the proponents, the person whose DA it might be or the people who are disagreeing with a particular thing that's up before council, and a classic on that was the Berrima diesel issue which was a very contentious issue but it really paid off dividends because, having done that work, I called up all the old boxes, all the old files on that case that stemmed back into the late 50s and I found - I tracked all the decisions that had been made by staffers over, you know, a 40-odd-year period, 50-year period right down to little Post-it notes and things stuck on it, and it showed how this situation had come about.

Now, none of this was in the report, and in fact council from memory I think the council staff were saying no to this, and from having done my homework and really taken the whole thing apart, investigated it thoroughly, I was able to persuade several councillors who were going to vote against it to change their votes and I believe that justice was then done.

But the course is very valuable and I did feel that I had a much better grasp of it of how to conduct the job I - you know, the job I was voted in for.

Q. Can I ask you about the councillors in your term in 2012-2016 who then went on to be re-elected in 2016-2020. No need to name names, but of those councillors in your impression in the 2012-2016 term, do you think they understood their roles and responsibilities? And you don't have to answer this as a group but if the answer is, some of them did, some of them didn't --

 A. I think that - it's a difficult question to answer, I'm not trying to avoid it, but I think at a basic level they understood what they were meant to do, but I think that because the two terms were so volatile and aggressive, I think most councillors lost sight of the reason they're there, the purpose they're there, which was for the community. Most councillors at some time or another, right, lost touch with the real core essence of why they were there and the personal overrode these things, and the councillors' personalities were quite interesting to observe, how they each responded to the situations that they found themselves in in a council debate where, you

- Q. Can I just ask you to put some timeframes around that observation? Was it during your time in 2012-2016, or is this something you also observed or only observed in 2016-2020?
- A. It was systematic, it was right throughout. It was almost well, when I was on in my term it was daily, and from what I observed in the second term, the 2016 onwards term, it continued on. Sad to say, but it was almost no let up. And there was it wasn't just between councillors. There was very much a sense of them and us: the staff versus the councillors, it was war. It was verbal but it was war, but it was a war.

 Because the councillors often did not have, except for a minority who did whatever staff recommended, almost blindly, there were the other councillors who were either responding to community voices or had an axe to grind against a councillor who was on the opposing view, and the staff often the recommendations threw up huge problems, and there was no confidence, I think, in a lot of cases by councillors that staff was doing their job properly and well and of a high enough standard, and there were occasions where the reports were clearly flawed.

And I could remember - I just wish I could remember the case, but I can remember once where I got - I actually said that, "Staff is trying to lead council", and, you know, it just rained down on top of me. I was threatened by, you know, senior staff that if I didn't withdraw and apologise that, you know, codes of conduct would be laid on me and that the DLGs, you know, saw if staff laid a Code of Conduct on a councillor that was always looked at with a fine tooth comb very critically, and they took far more interest in that than if the public put codes of conduct or the councillors put codes of conduct on other councillors.

 But, you know, it was difficult because I think a lot of - to be honest, I think that 80 per cent of the inflammation that occurred during those two terms probably wouldn't have existed if both the public, the community, and the councillors felt that council staff - and by that I mean leadership - were doing a better job. I think that a

I mean, I know that this inquiry is meant to be about the poor conduct of councillors, but I honestly believe that, if you had taken away the problems which were largely caused by, in my view, staff that we would have had a better time of it, I think that, you know, it created an arena where the councillor's worst personality traits came out as a result, and that's unfortunate but I think that's what engendered it.

- Q. Do I take you to mean by that evidence that the councillors weren't given proper or adequate support from the senior or executive level of staff to equip themselves to do their jobs?
- A. What do you mean by "support"?

- Q. Well, as you understand it is there a role to play with, for instance, the general manager and other group managers to provide information --
- A. Information?

- Q. -- information, guidance and support to councillors to allow them to do their jobs?
- A. In that context I agree, there was not the support. In fact, staff were very, very reluctant to provide what I would call information. We often had the GIPA things, which just seemed extraordinary.

- ${\tt Q.}$ Is this during your term or during the --
- A. This is during my term.

Q. Yes.

A. I don't know, I can't answer for the second term, but I know that - in relation to GIPAing information I know that during the second term that councillors still did have problems getting just information that they wanted and asked for.

 Staff, it was really circling the wagon stuff. I think staff felt besieged but there was a valid reason for that. The management of staff, I have to say, during both terms was very poor. I think that the general manager that was on duty when we first got elected was a nice person but not up to the task, but certainly a nice person.

We then went into the situation where we were looking for a new general manager and I think, if we'd gotten the general manager that was actually awarded the job and voted in for the job, I think if we'd had that person things would have improved considerably. As it was, we didn't get that individual and I feel that the general manager that we ended up with for the rest of that - my term and then the 2016 onwards term was in themselves not a bad individual but they were entirely unsuited to this role; by nature very defensive, and this was a problem because if councillors came to this person, and one of the DGMs in particular, they were met with a wall all the time. was no willingness to sit down and engage, there wasn't any form of - and I say "collaboration" in the honest sense of the word, you know; if you'd like to say "support", then support.

Briefings didn't change from my term to the next term; they were appalling, councillor briefings, they were really just - might not have happened. So many times we would we'd have this dreadful death by PowerPoint. On the Wednesday prior to the meeting we'd come in in the morning and we'd have staffer after staffer after staffer to do this death by PowerPoint. I kept saying to the general manager, "Why can't we have these Powerpoints when we get our papers on the Friday so that we can read through these things so that we can make that time more productive? can guery and guestion and ask and get insights into why staff have come to these things, not just get the words read out to us. It is completely and utterly pointless". "No, no, no, you can't". I said, "Well, can we have executive summaries?" "No, no, you can't". And I said, "Not all councillors read their papers in full and some people - most of them are working full-time, they don't have the time like I do." And I said, "An executive summary is a really good way of imparting the who, the what, the why". "No, can't have executive summaries".

And, I think staff always felt that they were being If councillors asked a question or wanted more information: "Why?" "No you can't have that, it's not Well, let us have a look at it and decide relevant". whether it's relevant or not. Don't keep mushrooming us all the time, you know. And it sets up the wrong environment. How can the councillors feel happy in their work or as if they're properly informed if they don't get the information they want? Maybe it is extraneous or irrelevant, but let the councillor have the information, if it's not state secrets, you know, let them have the information and come to the conclusion themselves.

We used to get - in our briefings we would get to the end of the PowerPoint session and there'd be, you know, if you were lucky, five or 10 minutes left and we'd want to ask a question. "No", said the general manager or the DGM, "You can't get into that, that's debate. You have to do that in the chambers tonight". "No, it's not debate, it's a question. I want more information, I want to understand X or Y or Z". "No, that's debate, can't have it".

- Q. Can I ask you about your source of knowledge about the conduct of briefings in the 2016-2020 term. Was that information that you got from people that was reported to you or did you have occasion to see that first hand from time to time?
- A. Look, I didn't get a lot of information on the briefings, no. I knew that there was still a problem going on because, you know, occasionally when I would talk to councillors or I would talk to the public, the public were saying they can't get the information because the councillor can't get the information on issues. So, as far as I'm aware because not being a councillor any more, obviously, there are boundaries you're not meant to cross, and I didn't.

But I will say this, and maybe this is not the right area to do it in, as in the right question, but I approached council staff on a couple of issues where things were clearly floundering, and that was in the economic development side of things, and I brought people with solutions and I offered the general manager, you know, meetings and amazing solutions, and there was just a wall. There was no interest, absolutely no appetite. It's not our idea so we're not going to entertain it, you know, staff know best, and that was the same during my term, "Staff know best, don't challenge us, don't question us". It is infuriating because, how can you do your job if you just feel that you're being treated like a 12-year-old that has to sit down in class and be quiet? No wonder councillors got uppity.

- Q. Can I ask about the distinction between operational and strategic. Was it your understanding that councillors were in charge of strategic planning and staff were in charge, or the executive, were in charge of the day-to-day management and operation?
- A. That's the way it's meant to be.
- Q. Two questions, I think I'll break it up. Did you find generally that that was observed, that distinction, during your term?
- No. it wasn't. There was some councillors who wanted to delve into the operations side, about but I believe the reasons that they wanted to delve into the operations side, even if that's not strictly what they should have been doing, they were doing it because they could see that there In particular, if you've got a councillor were problems. who knows more than the staffer and it's patently clear, or they know that staff are making operational decisions on issues where they're not even properly equipped such as the flood study, I mean, the flood study wasn't up-to-date. Now, in a shire like this the flood study is critical, because we're talking about infrastructure, we're talking about roads, bridges, storm water, we're talking about DAs being allowed or disallowed within flood zones --
- THE COMMISSIONER: Q. Can I perhaps bring you back to Mr Parish's question. Even if a councillor felt they had good reason to delve into operational, that's not the purview of a councillor; do you agree with that?

 A. I agree. In the terms of what we're set up to do, we are supposed to stay out of operational.
- Q. Yes
- A. I completely understand and agree with that. What do you do then as a councillor, I then frame the question, what do you do if you see expenditure of budgets going haywire in the operational side and it's quite clear it's because of staff failure?
- Q. Well, that's perhaps a slightly different question, but because of course councillors as the elected body are responsible for resource allocation and budget matters, so they would be able to address those matters in accordance with their functions. But what I'm really --
- A. Under normal circumstances.

- Q. And if that was unsuccessful I withdraw that. That then highlights, does it not, the importance of a strong working relationship between the general manager and the elected body; do you agree with that?
- A. Sorry, can you just repeat that again?

- Q. The fact that the councillors' ability I withdraw that. The fact that the way that a councillor may raise an operational concern is appropriately done via the general manager highlights the importance of a strong working relationship between each of the members of the governing body and the general manager of the day. Do you agree with that?
- A. Yes.

THE COMMISSIONER: Thank you. Mr Parish.

- MR PARISH: Q. Can I ask you now about specifically the meetings during the 2016-2020 term. Did you have occasion to attend those meetings from time to time?
- A. From time to time.

Q. What was the impression left with you when you attended those meetings in respect to the issues we've been talking about?

A. Ongoing disappointment because nothing had improved. I felt that staff relations with councillors clearly degenerated. I know that there was staff that were very unhappy with senior staff because they would privately talk to me. The council meetings themselves were sometimes - they were just a mess, they were seriously a mess, and I think for the public coming along and seeing - seeing it conducted this way, it would give them no confidence that the ship was in, you know, a safe pair of hands. They were worried and they had every right to be worried, as in, the community I'm talking about. So, yeah, they hadn't improved.

Q. Can you give me some examples of what led you to conclude that the meetings were a mess, some specific examples?

A. Some of them were, you had members of the public calling out over debate. You had whoever was in the chair trying to control councillor outbursts and, you know, because normally you've got your light on if you're the councillor that's speaking, and other councillors would be interjecting and carrying over the top of it. You'd have councillors muttering over the top of their breath but just enough to be heard to either get a reaction from the public or to get a - to bait the, you know, the other councillor that was speaking.

You had, the general manager would often absent herself. More and more it seemed that one of the two DGMs was running the place. The general manager was just - she was publicly absent in the community's view as well, and I think that further upset things because, if you've got a general manager who leaves the meeting for extensive periods of time - and I can't say why the general manager left the meeting, but it seems to me that the heat in the room was such that they just wanted out. So, yeah, they weren't good.

 Q. You referred to the clear degeneration of the relationship between some staff and councillors. Can you give us some examples that led you to that conclusion?

A. In my time or in the second term?

Q. In the second term.

A. I can't give you - oh, memory. I think it was - I mean, I can't remember specific issues, but I just have pictures in my head of, in particular the DGM, who was really running the show just, you know, it was almost a bullying attitude.

Q. From who to whom?

A. To the councillor. You know, when people get frustrated on both sides, good behaviour - when it's been going on for a long, long time good behaviour gets forgotten, and there was clear animosity between this particular DGM and certain councillors; I mean, real animosity, and it was - it came across that it was sort of almost like, "I'm going to bring you down." "No, you're not, I'm going to bring you down". You got that feeling that it was as tough as it could be without people throwing fisticuffs or whatever, and that's a bad atmosphere to be operating in.

Q. Yes, that's fine.

A. When the chambers were almost finished the mayor had sent out I think the papers to say that the council meeting was happening in the new rooms, and this councillor turned up at the appointed time in here to be told by the DGM, "No, it's not in here, you've got to leave this room", and the councillor sort of said, "well, it's in the papers, where am I supposed to be?" And this descended into a real argy-bargy with the - with - sorry?

- Q. That was me. Carry on.
- With the DGM kind of well, making false Α. statements, that's the only way I can put it. It was something to do with panels or whatever that hadn't been installed in here, and they were in a storeroom and the DGM said, "No they're not". You know, they were in a storeroom, there was a receipt for them and they were stored away in there. You know, there was - what can you I mean, it was huge frustration on the part of some councillors because they really felt that some staff - not all - and there's - I have to say, I know I'm painting staff in a bit of a light here, but in the lower echelons there were some terrific people, but not in the other echelons by and large, and that was where, because the councillors had more - obviously they had very little, if anything, to do with the lower echelons, it was this - the leadership from staff was constantly at war with the councillors, with the majority of the councillors, I would say.

 Q. Could I put a proposition to you and you can agree or disagree with it; that the example you just gave where a councillor was on premises asking about where panels were, would that be an operational or a strategic issue?

A. Oh, no, no, no, no. Sorry, I didn't explain that very well. No, there was a council meeting called, right, for all - the usual Wednesday council meeting, or could have been an extraordinary general meeting, I can't remember, so everybody was meant to be here; according to the papers everybody was meant to turn up here at 3 o'clock or 2 o'clock or whatever time. This councillor got here as per the papers and was told by the DGM, "No, you're not meant to be here". The councillor said, "Yes, I am according to the papers". "No you're not, it's somewhere else", and there was a thing about this room not being finished and it's still a building site.

The councillor in question happens to be a builder, so he knows more about building sites than certainly the DGM knew. And, he said - well, the DGM said, "There's something about the panels not being up". And he said, "Well, the panels are in the storeroom, why aren't the panels up?" So it was, you know, and the DGM was saying, "No they're not, we don't have them", and they were on the premises. It was that, it wasn't really an operational issue, it was the staff versus councillor.

Q. Can I ask you about --

- THE COMMISSIONER: Q. Sorry, can I just ask you about that? On one view there's a bit of triviality about some of that, is there not; I mean -- A. Sorry?
- Q. On one view there might be a bit of triviality about how that descended into such an issue. I mean, the councillor thought he had to be here, something had happened to mean that he wasn't meant to be here. How did it descend to being such a significant issue?

 A. Personalities.

THE COMMISSIONER: Yes, thank you.

- MR PARISH: Q. And, I take it, you were giving that as an example of how there was a lack of there would have been a denigration in relationship between some staff and some --
- A. There was no respect between councillors to staff, staff to councillors.
- Q. Yes, and that was an example of it, yes, thank you. Can I ask you about the DA process and, just due to time and our terms of reference, I'll try to concentrate it on the 2016-2020 term in which you observed meetings from time to time.

Can I ask you about your impression of the DA process whereby DAs were called up to council and dealt with in council. There is now a local planning panel in place. Do you think the councillors are best placed to deal with these planning decisions, or in your view is it appropriate or a good idea now for them to be with the local planning panel? Do you have a view on that?

A. Okay, tough one. I think the process that I witnessed was that the majority of DAs were never called up to council because they complied or, you know, they weren't contentious, it was somebody building a garage or somebody building a new house, basic, you know, on the block of land to the right - you know, and the majority of those, you know, weren't called up.

What I did see was, if a councillor either personally knew the proponent, and either had an axe to grind against that proponent or had a friend who had an axe to grind against that proponent, it would get called up. So, it became an opportunity to cause problems for a DA on spurious terms.

In terms of having a panel, I think DAs should be absolutely at arm's-length from councillors. I don't think - I think the nature of, just human nature gets in the way, particularly in a shire like this because it's a very small shire in terms of population. So, if you're a councillor, chances are everybody knows that you're a councillor, you know a lot of people, and it's a situation which is going to unfortunately attract negative associations, relationships, et cetera, around decision making, so you get decisions being made that are completely against what they should be, and they're made as payback or, you know, as a favour to a friend or whatever, so we've seen that happen.

To have it done at arm's-length by a panel, I think, is a good idea providing, however - and this is a big caveat on it - providing that LEP and the DCPs are fit for purpose for the shire in question. As it stands, this shire's LEP and DCPs are fighting against the future of the shire. They are a critical reason why there are so many problems here.

If you've got an LEP and DCPs that the community in general are happy with, then an arm's-length panel should be able to simply follow the - you know, join the dots and make a decision based on consistency. If you don't, you get massive inconsistency which is what we have here, huge inconsistency in decision-making around planning.

1 2 3 4 5	Q. Can I ask, you referred to witnessing certain DAs being called up to council because one or other councillor had a personal interest in it, and I don't mean that in a pecuniary or non-pecuniary conflict. A. No, no, I know what you mean.
6 7 8 9	Q. Was that something you witnessed in both your term and in the 2016-2020 term? A. Yes.
1 1 2 3	THE COMMISSIONER: Sorry, Mr Parish, I might have missed part of your question. When you were describing the interest, what did you mean by interest?
15	MR PARISH: Personal interest.
6 7	THE COMMISSIONER: As in? Help me?
18 19 20 21	MR PARISH: I meant it in a non-conflict of interest sense, which is what I was trying to clarify.
22 23	THE COMMISSIONER: Did the witness understand that?
24 25	MR PARISH: Pardon me?
26 27 28	THE COMMISSIONER: Could you just put the question again so we're all on the same page? You and Ms Campbell might be and I might be the one who's not quite there.
29 30 31	MR PARISH: It seems to be the case.
32 33 34	Q. So A. Sorry, is that being re-asked?
35 36 37 38	Q. I will re-ask it in a clear way. You mentioned witnessing DAs being called up in respect of councillors who had a personal interest in it; is that correct? A. Did you say "impersonal" or "a personal".
39 40 41 42	Q. A personal interest in that DA? A. Yes.
12 13 14 15 16 17	Q. And when you mean personal interest, you're not suggesting that there's a conflict of interest in a pecuniary or non-pecuniary sense, you mean it in an inquisitorial or curiosity sense; is that correct? A. Both.

Both.

In the curious or inquisitorial sense, is that something you witnessed in both terms? Α. Yes.

You've just given some evidence about the role of council in a community the size of this community. your experience and in your view when you were councillor. is it your view that, when you're a councillor, you're always a councillor out in society, in the sense that you can never take off your councillor hat and make comment to do things and say, "I'm only doing that in a personal citizen capacity"? Do you have a view on that? Yeah, I think that's the case because it is - because it's so small a community in that sense, yes. Certainly during my time, wherever I went, people recognised that, and the conversation or the issue or the whatever, so yeah, yep.

I don't have any other specific topics to canvass, Commissioner, unless you want to.

THE COMMISSIONER: No.

34 35

36

37

38

39

40

41

MR PARISH: Q. Is there anything else you want to address us on in respect of the terms of reference? I think the way councils evolved originally in the 1800s is a very different situation to where we find ourselves now in the 21st Century, and back in the day the community heavyweights were generally the councillors: the lead lawyer, the lead doctor, the lead, you know, landowner et cetera.

42 43 44

46 47

So we filtered down into a current situation where the legacy of that means that councillors by and large are probably not fit for purpose. And, we're talking about now councils that are run - they are a business, they're $100 million plus businesses, and when you have people who are elected into a situation that they really have no experience in the running of a business and the understanding of how business operates, and the entanglements of personal connections throughout the community, overlaying that personal history within a shire, you're setting up problems that become very complex. And I think you only have to look at New South Wales's history of the councils that are now currently in administration or have recently been in administration: we've had one only a week or two ago, Central Coast.

When I was in council in the first term, my only term, two of us wanted administration called in then. We felt that the situation was so bad and we wanted administration brought in. It was never going to happen because of political interference.

And I think that there needs to be massive reform about how councillors are selected for shires if we are to get away from these constant issues where you've either got a situation like ours with great antagonism, lack of trust, lack of transparency, et cetera, et cetera, going on or you go into areas where you've got massive budgetary problems, councils going into administration because they're broke.

And you've got a situation where you've got bureaucrats on one side and they're doing things, presumably to the best of their ability, but if you don't have at the head the right leadership - and there's an old saying, "Fish rots from the head" - and it was very true with our council because, if you don't have that strong leadership, you're going to have councillors at war, you're going to have staff that are unhappy.

I had one staffer come to me on a situation to do with the asbestos on our roads and he was - I think he was a manager at that time in his department, and he's a fully grown man and he's in tears to me because he is terrified of the DGM and the bullying that was going on. And he said, "Please don't - I'm trying to get this problem solved as fast as I can, please don't say anything to the DGM because I just can't take any more".

 You had staff here that, when I first got elected I realised that there wasn't a proper - there'd never been - an audit done of all of our assets; you know, our buildings, our parks, our public toilets our everything. So, I finally got the approval to have a committee formed to look into it, and the staff - I was given the opportunity to meet the staff, so this is the real underlings, if you like, in the hierarchy of things - and my first question to them was, "What would you like to see done with this department?" And they looked at each other like it was a trick question, and eventually I said, "You know, just tell me what you want". And they said, "Nobody's ever asked us that before". So, if the culture and the - you know, if the leadership is lacking you're not going to get good outcomes, you're going to have systematic breakdowns between staff, between councillors.

I really do think there needs to be a complete overhaul as to who can run for council and how they're selected. I think by and large you just do not get the right calibre of people. You're also, if you're paying peanuts you get monkeys: that's another expression. To be a councillor is a full-time job if you're going to do it properly. It's not a part-time job that you fit in between other things, and you rock up and you just make a ruling on a DA or a ruling on this and you rubber stamp whatever staff is telling you: that's the wrong approach. It's a full-time commitment, it should be properly remunerated as such, but equally, how you elect and find those people I think needs reform, big reform.

And I'll say also just for the sake of this council is, even though there are councillors here who represent the different political parties, our problems never stemmed from that. The party politics didn't come too it - well, maybe fractionally here and there, but by no means were the cause of problems.

 What else did I want to say? I really think a lot of problems that were caused by councillors and the behaviour that you saw in our council - two terms - were very often driven by passion, strong belief that justice in some way or other wasn't being served.

THE COMMISSIONER: Just on that though --

 THE WITNESS: And I know we're not a court of law, but when I say "justice not being served", that the mechanisms that they were being asked to make decisions via were failing what really needed to happen.

 THE COMMISSIONER: Q. Assuming that to be the case for the purposes of my next question -- A. Sorry?

Q. Just assume, as you say, that some of the behaviours were driven by passion and strong beliefs, et cetera, you don't offer that as an excuse for a breach of the obligations under the Local Government Act, do you?

A. No, I don't offer that. You know, that's like saying, you know, "She was driven to murder because she was wound up about it or he was wound up about it."

There's another way of looking at that, and this is going to sound a bit feminist, and I'm not really, but you know, if Emily Pankhurst and her friends hadn't kind of gotten a bit rough chaining themselves to gates, when would woman have gotten the vote? Unfortunately it takes, sometimes it takes the envelope being pushed for attention to be drawn to problems.

I don't make excuses for it but I'm saying at the same time, you've tried every other course: you've gone to the DLG and you've said there's a problem, the DLG doesn't want to know about it. You've gone to the press; the press aren't interested because it's a little shire outside Sydney, who gives a - you know. But the DLG is supposed to be the body that either as a bureaucrat or a councillor you can go to and say, "We've got a problem", or you go to the Minister as a last resort and, if you get no support, you don't get listened to, you don't get any kind of support back or even acknowledgment, what do you do?

So here we are, here is this shire in administration because councillors got to the point where tempers boiled over, and that is a really sad indictment of how councils are in the modern era, and this is not the only one. So that tells us something, that tells us that the current model is a flawed model.

And sure, behaviour, words, thumpings of tables, whatever; but for me to be threatened by a deputy general manager and a general manager, because I feel that I'm being led by staff's report, and seriously being led, and I knew that report was flawed, and I'm being told to backtrack and apologise, I'm sorry, I'm not going to.

1	You know, we're here for the community. And one of
2	the things I've noticed from these hearings to date is, the
3	community is telling you the same thing: there is something
4	- it's not all the councillors' fault, not by any stretch.
6	I'm not saying all councillors were good guys all the
7	way, all the time: no, they weren't. Were they guilty of
8	being mischievous? Yes. Were they guilty of being, you
9	know, rude or abusive at times? Most likely. But you've
10	got no - you just - you're at the end of your tether, and
11	the DLG won't back you up, it has - you've got nowhere to
12	go. You're also not allow - we're not politicians, we've
13	got to remember that; we're not covered by the same things
14	that state and federal polies are covered by.
	that State and Tederal portes are covered by.
15	Co for up to get about a for up to go community
16	So, for us to get change, for us to - as community
17	representatives, what else can you do? You're driven to
18	the point where you have to bang the table. I mean,
19	Station Street was the biggest
20

1 2 3 4	Mr Parish, is there any reason Ms Campbell ought not be excused?
5	MR PARISH: No reason.
